BREWSTER FIVE DAYS OVERDUE IN STORM

MISSING STEAMER BREWSTER, NOW FIVE DAYS OVERDUE IN BOSTON.

SISTER VESSELS TELL OF FIGHT FOR LIFE IN HURRICANE SWEPT SEA

Caribbean Lashed by Furious Storm, and Fruit Company Officials Have Little Hope for Safety of Missing Vessel—Admiral Schley Had Fierce Experience.

Five days overdue, at the point in Jamaica to which she was bound from Boston, nothing has yet been heard from the United Fruit Company's steamship Brewster, which must have been crossing directly in the pathway of the West India hurricane last week, the fiercest tropical storm known in many years.

Two battered and beaten steamships at the docks here in Boston show from stem to stern the fearful force of the seas which buffeted them for days on their way to this port.

The officials of the United Fruit Company have not given over hope that the Brewster will soon be heard from. Nevertheless, there is an ill-concealed feeling of anxiety for the fate of the steamer which left this port for Jamaica on September 1.

HAD CREW OF 35 MEN.

Nothing has been heard of the Brewster. She carried a crew of thirty-five men when she left here and no passengers. Her route carried her directly across the Caribbean Sea where the hurricane is reported to have raged with greatest violence.

Other trailers have arrived in this and other ports and have shown by their battered condition the fearful force of the seas which ran before the hurricane. None has sighted the Brewster, and where she may be is sought but guesswork on the part of the officials of the fruit company.

Out of the loth of the tempest two steamers have put limped into safe harbor in Boston. The little tramp steamer Alice, Captain C. H. Knudson, crawled in to dry four days overdue. She had lost her chart house, and her after house had been smashed in by waves of that terrible storm.

The stanch steamer Admiral Schley of the United Fruit Company came into port early Sunday, over forty-eight hours late. She, too, though to a less marked degree, showed the effects of the fight with wind and wave.

Captain's Wife in Storm.

The Alice ran into the hurricane on last Tuesday night, and for more than three days she was at the mercy of the elements. Brave Ingeborg Knudson, Captain Knudson's wife, stayed with him in the pilot house of the rolling ship for fifty hours. During the greater part of that time she lay on the floor of the pilot house as she could not stand.

The Alice ran into the storm when forty miles north of Watling Island. She was then close to in the trough of the sea from 4 o'clock Thursday morning until 2 o'clock that afternoon, and again on Friday she was helpless from 6 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night.

At the office of the United Fruit Company it is believed that the overdue steamer Brewster is disabled and seeking assistance or communication from some one of the many islands on her course to Jamaica.

"We have not heard from the Brewster since she left," said an official of the company. "We think she is broken down and lying at some point among the Windward Islands which are on her regular course, and there is seeking repairs or perhaps trying in vain to get communication with the owners. As far as we can learn she has not been seen since she left Boston. The fact that the steamer is overdue does not necessarily mean that she is lost, and we shall have no serious worry for the present."

The Schley Had a Rough Time.

After one of the most adventurous voyages ever experienced by any steamer hailing from the West Indies, the Admiral Schley arrived from Jamaica and tied up at her dock in this city this morning. Twenty-five passengers were on board, and they had a thrilling story of their experiences to tell. First of all, however, they drew up a set of resolutions which was presented to the officials of the fruit company, in which the conduct and bravery of Captain Asa F. Carlson, the twenty-six year-old commander of the steamer were commended.

Leaving Point Morant, Jamaica, on September 4, the steamer started for Boston. When only one day out the most severe weather was encountered. The wind was terrific in its force and the Admiral Schley was in the centre of a hurricane for seventy-two hours. During the storm the starboard lifeboat, the after deckhouse and several deadlights were smashed in, and the saloon and several staterooms were flooded. The saloon deck was torn up and the passengers lived in terror of death for three days and nights.

Feared They Would Never See Land.

Among the passengers on board were Mr. and Mrs. John M. Casey of Boston. Mr. Casey is one of Mayor Fitzgerald's secretaries. To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, Mrs. Casey said:

"We never expected to see land again. Those awful days away out there in the broad ocean were the worst that I ever experienced, and I hope that I will never have to pass through such an experience again. Our stateroom was flooded, and when the mountain-high waves struck the ship I thought we were doomed. No words of praise can be made too strong for the gallant young captain who brought the ship through to safety. Captain Davidson remained on the bridge about all the time. After the first day out we were not allowed to go on deck, and some of the sailors who were in the saloon could not return to their quarters at night for fear of being washed overboard. It was terrible."

Captain Davidson had little to say about the voyage. He is an unusually young man to be in command of a big steamer, and not at all inclined toward heroics. He refused to pose for his photograph, and when some forlorn spirit among the newspaper camera men attempted to "snap" him he ran into his cabin and locked the door. The man who was not afraid of the giant and overwhelming seas and the danger of death qualified when confronted by a harmless photograph.

The Admiral Schley brought in a cargo of about 30,000 bunches of bananas. On account of the length of the voyage, the bananas were ripened, and there will be a loss of about $10,000 on the cargo.

Among the passengers were Theodore F. Allen, Edward E. Sanborn, Rufus S. Sprague, Mrs. Helen Sprague, Richard L. Hopkins, all of Boston, and Miss Jay Hall of Worcester.

Three Hindoo theatrical performers were also passengers on the steamer, and they are held up by the immigration authorities pending an investigation. One of the dusky trio is without legs or arms.

HAS CREW OF GERMANS.

The Brewster is a powerful boat, practically new, being but three years old. She hails from Hamburg, and most of her crew and officers are Germans. She is equipped with triple expansion engines, and has powerful machinery, being especially equipped for the towing of fruit barges from Jamaica to the gulf ports.

NEGROES MOB POLICE IN RIOT; ONE WILL DIE

GUARDS ON HOUSE TOPS

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Police are today stationed on the roofs of every tenement house in the "San Juan" hill section, guarding against further rioting between negroes and whites. A double reserve of police were called early to-day, and Sixty-second street between Amsterdam and West End avenues is under close guard.

The riot resulted in the fatal shooting of one negro, the beating of a number of others and injuries to several policemen, who were struck with stones and other flying missiles.

The riot call came after the ball given by the Hotel Belmont Association in Sulzer's Harlem River Park, which ended at 3:30 a. m. Among those who attended this ball, where more than 2,000 negro men and women were present, were James Harris of No. 232 West Sixty-second street and James Johnson of No. 209 West Sixty-second street. These men went to the ball together, and quarreled over money.

Quarrelled With Woman.

Harris, after a quarrel with a woman he met at the ball, started for his home. He met Johnson and the quarrel was resumed. Harris knocked Johnson unconscious with a blackjack.

Policeman Charles Daly ordered Harris to throw up his hands. Instead, Harris drew a revolver and levelled it at the policeman's head. Then he started to run, turning as he ran to fire at Daly.

Daly levelled his own revolver at the negro and fired and Harris fell with a bullet in his temple.

Instantly the negro tenants poured into the street. Some of the men carried revolvers, others stones and clubs.

Before Daly could protect himself he was surrounded by negroes. Policeman Connors ran to Daly's assistance. The two policemen were born to the ground and were struck with clubs and stones. Several revolver shots were fired.

Throw Bricks from Roof.

Then came the reserves, in charge of Sergeants Shaupiner and Kennedy and Roundsmen Treanor and Tighe. The negroes were driven to their houses. Instantly the policemen were attacked from the roofs of the tenements. Stones shot through the air, and hot water came from the windows. The police helmets were crushed on every hand. More police were called.

The negroes were in an ugly mood. Many of them were still drunk from the liquor they had taken at the ball.

At Roosevelt Hospital, where Harris was taken, it was said that he could not live. Johnson was also taken to the hospital.

The riot at Sulzer's Harlem River Park occurred when a negro attacked a woman. Policeman Dooley, employed in the park, interfered. The negroes made for Dooley, but the latter escaped.

Gus Sulzer, a nephew of William Sulzer and of the man for whom the park is named, and William Hogan, both special policemen, then came under the eyes of the negroes. Sulzer was stabbed in the face and Hogan was beaten into insensibility.

Then came the police reserves. Ronald Deverne of 107 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street was shot by a negro as the man who had stabbed him, and was arrested.

STURTEVANT GIRL, WAITING FATE WEEPS

Accused of Shooting Former Sweetheart, Annoyed at Grand Jury's Delay.

Special to the Boston American.

WOODSVILLE, N. H., Sept. 12.—The hopes of Ethel Sturtevant, accused of shooting her former sweetheart, Gene Barden, were lighted yesterday when she learned that she would not know the decision of the grand jury until Thursday, as they do not give out their findings until they rise and turn over their reports to the clerk and are discharged. She was in hopes that she would be informed of their action immediately and would be free.

Mrs. Sturtevant, Ethel's step-mother, visited her yesterday, and there was a pathetic meeting. The girl greeted her mother with passionate kisses and wept, with her head on her shoulder.

Mrs. Sturtevant, after spending several hours with her daughter, returned here and, for the first time since the shooting, told to a Boston American reporter what she knew of the affair.

"I have ridden in the barn and run to the neighbors every time a reporter came in sight," she said, "and although they have printed interviews, I never talked to any of them.

"I am as positive of Ethel's innocence as she is herself and I don't see how they can indict her, for she was gone from the house that night but a few minutes and returned undisturbed and certainly did not have the appearance of one who had just shot a friend. I told her that it was about bed time and she said 'Yes' and went to bed.

"Next morning Sheriff Stearnes called and I thought it was Ira Dean, for they resemble each other. He asked to see Ethel and told him that she was not feeling well. Then he said that he must see her and told me of the shooting and that was the first time that I had any inkling of it. I had not heard any shot the night before and, as it was very still, if the shot was fired in front of the house I would have heard it.

ARRESTED, HAS THEFT RECORD

Harry F. Cronin, twenty-six years old, of South Boston, who with Barbara Manly, twenty-one years old, also of South Boston, was arrested yesterday on the charge of robbing John George of Beverly of $1,206.10, was identified at Police Headquarters to-day as Patrick H. Cronan, who has served several terms for larceny. Cronan was arrested in 1898 by Inspector Wolfe for larceny, after a desperate fight, in which Inspector Wolfe received injuries that kept him in bed for three weeks and Cronan received two bullet wounds in the leg from the officer's revolver. He has also served terms for larceny in Cambridge.

BOLSTER GOES ABOVE SEVEN OLDER JUDGES

GUILD'S SELECTION OF SUCCESSOR TO JUDGE BROWN ONLY TWO YEARS ON BENCH.

Governor Guild to-day presented to the Council the name of Special Justice Wilfred Bolster to succeed Chief Justice John F. Brown of the Municipal Court. Judge Brown was recently promoted to the Superior Court bench. The nomination of Judge Bolster comes as a great surprise to the legal fraternity. His experience on the bench is less than two years.

If his nomination is approved, as there is every reason to expect it will be, he will pass over the heads of the seven associate justices, all of whom have had considerably longer experience on the bench, and to whom Judge Bolster is comparatively a young man.

Judge Bolster is about forty years of age. He was born in Roxbury, where he has always lived, and is a son of Judge Solomon A. Bolster. He is graduate of the Lewis Grammar and the Roxbury Latin schools. He afterwards attended Harvard University, receiving his degree of LL. B. in 1891.

He was associated with former Mayor David T. Dickinson of Cambridge, with whom he had law offices in Barristers Hall.

For years he has been prominent in Ward 21 Republican politics, and at one time was a member of the Boston School Board and chairman of the committee on normal school.

BLAST KILLS 1; HURTS 3 IN A QUARRY

QUINCY, Sept. 12.—By the explosion of an old blast of powder in the quarry of the Quincy Granite Railway Company at West Quincy shortly after 9 o'clock to-day one man was instantly killed and three others severely injured. The accident occurred in a shaft eighty feet deep, and it was with difficulty that the body of the dead man and those injured were brought to the surface.

The dead:

LARSON, WILLIAM, aged thirty-five, of No. 18 Grove street, Quincy.

The injured:

MILLER, JAMES, No. 10 Hall place, Quincy; injured about the head and shoulders; taken to his home.

MALONE, JOHN, No. 54 Side street; struck in stomach by piece of granite.

SATTALA, CHARLES, No. 4 Hillside street; cut about head and body by flying stones; condition critical; taken to Quincy Hospital.

The men blasted in the quarry yesterday and were set to work to-day taking out the stones. Some of the powder, it is said, used yesterday had fallen into the seams of the shaft. An air drill was used to-day and a spark from the drill is supposed to have caused the explosion.

Larson, who was nearest the seam where the explosion occurred, was struck by a heavy piece of granite and instantly killed. The other men in the shaft tried to make their escape when the explosion occurred, but were injured before they could do so.

CAMBRIDGE BIGAMIST SENTENCED 2 YEARS

Mrs. Rose Perry, formerly of Cambridge, now of San Francisco, Cal., will return to the Golden Gate City, assured that during the next two years her husband, Joseph Perry of Cambridge, will be thinking of her.

Perry forgot to get a divorce from Mrs. Perry when he married a young woman in the University City, while his two children by his real wife were held in the Harrison Avenue Home.

Yesterday Judge Bell in the Superior Court sent him to the House of Correction.

G. A. R., LABOR, SEEKING DEFEAT OF GROSVENOR

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Sept. 12.—That Lynn's anti-labor Senator, John M. Grosvenor, Jr., will find obstacles in his campaign for re-election is borne out by the fact that Grand Army soldiers have banded together to give him a crushing defeat at the approaching caucus. The veterans have not forgotten the fact that he voted against the Soldiers' relief bill, the enactment of which meant a yearly saving of $120,000 to Lynn and $1,000 to the town of Swampscott.

Lynn voters this year in selecting their candidate for the Senate are recalling the stand taken by Grosvenor in 1904, against the erection of the metropolitan bath house on Nahant beach. He did nothing to assist in getting the appropriation which Representative William E. Salter, the present candidate for the Republican nomination in Grosvenor's stead, was the father of the bill. And his efforts together with those of Representative Mathew McCurdy finally resulted in the erection of the new bath house.

Club Drops Him.

Swampscott is this year even as greatly aroused against Grosvenor's re-election as are the voters of Lynn. Through the medium of the Swampscott Improvement Club Grosvenor was enabled to make a clean sweep of his own town but last year. The club, in its approaching annual "pow-wow," when it launches its political choices, has not Senator Grosvenor from its list of invitations. Neither do the club members wish to listen to his excuse for "ducking" the overtime bill by going to Maine to open his camp.

Loses Strong Support.

The Winnipesaket Club, known as Swampscott's home for the wealthier citizens, has also removed its support from Senator Grosvenor. Last year the club supported him and openly thanked the members for their work. Shortly after he went to the Senate chamber he withdrew his membership.

Although two weeks intervene before the caucus, the voters are preparing to give their support to William E. Salter, who was barely beaten last year by the present incumbent. Salter has always been loyal to his party, and he has a perfect record on labor measures during his five years in the House of Representatives. He has the labor vote behind him.

ROOSEVELT ORDERS WARSHIPS TO CUBA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Acting Secretary of State Bacon announced to-day that the United States cruiser Denver has been ordered to Havana, Cuba, and should arrive there to-night or to-morrow morning. The gunboat Marietta, which Mr. Bacon says is now at Monte Cristi, Santo Domingo, has been ordered to Cienfuegos, Cuba. These orders were issued by direction of President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay.

The Des Moines will be held at Key West until further orders.

President Gives Orders.

It is the purpose of the administration to have these three vessels in readiness not only to protect Americans now in Cuba, but also to land marines in order to put a stop to the revolution if need for such action should be made by the Cuban government.

The entire program regarding Cuban affairs is being managed by the President at Oyster Bay, and it is said to be the result of plans laid out several days ago.

Army in Readiness.

The army also is ready to answer any call, although there are no orders from the President to this effect. Individual officers responsible for campaign work are making ready for any emergency without specific instructions.

1,600 DELEGATES GATHER IN TWO REMARKABLY ENTHUSIASTIC SESSIONS

N. Y. INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE TO NAME HEARST AND TICKET

PHOTOGRAPH OF THE INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE CONVENTION IN SESSION IN CARNEGIE HALL.

NAME OF LEADER CHEERED FOR THIRTY MINUTES BY DELEGATES.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The State convention of the Independence League of New York, after two remarkably enthusiastic sessions, is to-day ready to nominate a State ticket and finish the memorable and epoch-making business which it has assembled to transact.

There will be no fusion. A whirlwind of protest buried that proposition of compounding with any party, and amid another mighty outburst of enthusiasm the league adopted a platform which embraces all the well-known principles which have caused this popular uprising of the people to throw off former party ties and allegiances.

Two sessions of the convention, in which more than sixteen hundred delegates, representing every county in New York State, and impressed with the seriousness of the election which had brought them together, were held in Carnegie Hall yesterday.

Earnestness of Purpose.

At the morning session Willard A. Glen of Syracuse was made temporary chairman, and after a temporary organization had been made and committees appointed the convention adjourned to meet at 8 o'clock last night. Both sessions of the convention were characterized by an earnestness of purpose that stamps the inception of the party movement as one fraught with never-ending influence on the history of modern American politics.

Heat, fatigue and the discomfiture of being crowded had no effect on that great concourse of people who had come to do things. At the session last night one of the most remarkable tributes ever paid to a leader among men was given to William Randolph Hearst at the first mention of his name by Permanent Chairman Samuel Seabury.

For thirty minutes the great auditorium of Carnegie Hall seethed and boiled as the shouting, cheering legions marched, waved arms, coats and hats, and like the all-waved small flags, the great standards, and act in rhythmic motion the giant crowds of national colors floating from the balconies and galleries—for thirty minutes men laughed, sang, started a marching cry of "Hearst! Hearst! Hearst!" which carried them from their seats in the pit, balconies and stages to the aisles, where they marched under waving banners and standards, countermarched and marched again—for thirty minutes there was not a second in which the thousands were not on their feet, scattering torn paper, throwing confetti and coats into the air, carrying their leaders upon their shoulders and tossing one another aside like puff balls before the wind, and no man of woman present in that great throng ever experienced the thrill of such a demonstration before.

The convention hall, which had been decorated lastily and effectively for the occasion, was thrown open at noon, but the delegates were slow in arriving as the work of the State committee had not been completed until 2 o'clock in the morning. The delegation from Broome, bearing brooms, arrived in the hall first. Then came Cortland, and other counties marched in in rapid succession, each one being heartily cheered.

Willard Glen Chairman.

A temporary organization was made with Willard A. Glen as chairman, after State Chairman Max Hinman had called the assemblage to order and in a few well-chosen words stated the object of the gathering and an outline of the work which was to be accomplished. William A. DeFord of New York was the temporary secretary. Chairman Glen had scarcely got started in his address when, in presenting the names of the committee on resolutions, he mentioned the name of William Randolph Hearst.

It was ten minutes and twenty seconds before the delegates ceased cheering. A few minutes later a storm of hoots and hisses greeted the mention, first, of the name of McClellan, then of Parker, Platt, Odell and Depew.

Former Senator Mackey of Buffalo then offered the following resolution, which was adopted unanimously:

"Resolved, That committees on credentials, rules, permanent organization, platform and resolutions be appointed and that each delegation have one member on each of the committees."

The members of the various committees were then announced by the secretary, together with the hours of committee meetings.

The convention adjourned until 8 o'clock last night.

The night session was even more fully attended than that of the afternoon, thousands of women were present and Carnegie Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity.

Temporary organization was quickly effected. Willard A. Glen was selected temporary chairman. He had scarcely got started in his address when, in presenting the name of William Randolph Hearst—

Judge Reviews Issues.

After a permanent organization had been effected by the election of Justice Samuel Seabury of the city court, permanent chairman, the convention settled down to listen to the young judges' brilliant summing up of the issues of the opening campaign.

At the close of Judge Seabury's address, which was loudly cheered throughout, the report of the committee on resolutions was called for. Clarence J. Shearn, chairman of the committee, was tendered an ovation when he took the platform to present the report.

It is a ringing document, which covers every phrase of the political situation in New York and blazes the way to victory for the Independence League at the coming election. The platform was adopted unanimously.

Voted For a Full Ticket.

Mr. Cochrane of Kings, presented the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the communication transmitted by the State committee be referred to the committee on platform and resolutions with these instructions:

First, To draft and submit to the convention a suitable reply; second, that it is the sense of this convention that it nominate the full State ticket, and that the committee on platform be requested to consider qualifications of candidates and report to this convention for its action the name of candidates for all places on the State ticket."

After ten minutes of discussion the resolution was adopted.

The adoption of this resolution places the convention squarely on record in favor of a full ticket, which will be done to-night after the report of the committee on resolutions acting as a committee on nominations.

HAVERHILL LEAGUE WILL HAVE MEMBERS BY HUNDREDS SOON

Special to the Boston American.

HAVERHILL, Sept. 12.—An enthusiastic meeting of a large number of representative citizens met here last night and organized an Independence League.

The following provisional officers were chosen: President, John J. Murphy; secretary, Daniel G. Hall.

It was also voted to have an executive committee consisting of seven members, one from each ward, and that each member of the executive committee be a committee of one to organize his respective ward, a rallying committee to consist of earnest and energetic supporters of the declaration of principles of the League.

Cheers for Independence League; Four New Branches Formed in State

Special to the Boston American.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Sept. 12.—The citizens of this town last night organized a branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts, electing two strong men at its head, and the league here bids fair to become one of the strongest branches of the State organization in Massachusetts, to work in a healthy where opposition is of the strongest type.

President J. R. Nicholson, of the Trades Council of South Framingham, was elected president of the branch league, with John J. Conry, a prominent citizen and an employe of the Metropolitan water department, as secretary. By a vote later in the evening the men were selected as the South Framingham league's delegates to the State convention of the Massachusetts Independence League, which will be held in Faneuil hall, Boston, on Saturday, September 15.

Last night's meeting was held in Union hall and was attended by forty citizens, prominent among whom was the Hon. E. J. Slattery. Mr. Slattery addressed the new members of the league and outlined to them the work which the Independence League sought to do, in its fight against graft, bossism and other important matters which the people of this country have had to contend with during the past years.

Opposed to Party Bossism.

Secretary William F. Clancy, of the Central Labor Union of Milford, Mass., was introduced to the members by Mr. Slattery. Mr. Clancy said:

"I have always been opposed to party bossism for the reason that the plain, common people are given no representation under this rule. On the contrary, they are misrepresented, and those who have been selected to official positions by the working men's vote have certainly betrayed his interests. If a man here to-night doubts my word in that respect, simply ask him to go down to the next session of the Legislature at Boston and visit the State House when hearings on labor matters are being held and you will see what little satisfaction is given to the wage workers of this Commonwealth when they appear in favor of those labor measures.

"All Voters Should Join."

"I hope that every man who is a voter in this town will see to it that his name is at once enrolled as a member of the Independence League. The Independence League is the same sort of organization as the Wage Earners' Club, simply on a broader scale, and it seems to me that the Independence League is more practicable because it will take in a larger number of people, represented by people of sufficient backbone to rid this country of these evils with which we are forced to contend. You will find that it will be a strong factor and that it will benefit you immensely."

Mr. Clancy was followed by President Thomas Boyle, of the Shoemakers' Union, a Democrat, and C. W. McFarland, a well-known Republican. Both President Nicholson and Secretary Conroy are Republicans. Another meeting of the League will be held probably next Wednesday.

LEAGUE BRANCH BOOMS IN HOME WARD OF MORAN

A meeting to organize a branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts in Ward 10 was held last night in the hall at No. 120 Dartmouth street, South End. R. T. Allen, the city organizer of the league, presided, and explained the platform upon which the league is working.

The members elected Thomas O'Connor, president; William H. Pease, vice president, and John H. Finnerty, secretary and treasurer.

Michael Dean of Ward 17 was the other speaker. He is taking an active interest in the work of the league and since the movement was started has given it a close study.

EAST BOSTON FORMS 1ST INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE IN WARD 2

The first Independence League to be formed in East Boston was organized last night in Hibernian hall, Havre street, by the voters of Ward 2 and will be known as the Ward 2 Independence League.

George Davis, president of the Ward 6 league, called the meeting to order and a permanent organization was at once formed. Patrick Lawler was elected president and John F. Crane secretary-treasurer.

President Davis opened the meeting by referring to the work being done in the various wards of Boston and outlined the principles of the organization. He said the fundamental ideas of the League were independence of boss rule and corporation control. The immediate object was to wrest control of the government from the hands of the financial interests that now control it.

Thomas F. Phelan, of Ward 17, was then introduced and was received with applause. He said in part:

"The great masses of the people of the city of Boston are alive to the issues which confront them to-day. For the past few years they have been dictated to by the ward bosses, but now they find that these same ward leaders have betrayed them as Beacon hill, one of the most recent cases in which the people of Noddle Island did not have their wishes complied with was the Dock Trust scandal, with which you are all familiar. The people will no longer view with indifference the callers of the men who seek their suffrages in the quest for office, but will give due credit to the candidates' qualifications as against the dictation of the self-constituted leaders. The Independence League of Massachusetts is an organization that will stifle these leaders and bring equal and exact justice between man and man. With an organization advocating the principles of Jefferson and Lincoln, success must ultimately crown the efforts of the people who believe in a government for the people.

A MAYOR OF LYNN

Who is one of the leading manufacturers of that thriving city, was accustomed to recommend BU-LAX to his friends for all stomach and bowel complaints. We asked him once what he thought of our prescription, and he replied that he used no other medicine, as that kept him in the best of health. Shortly afterwards he wrote to us as follows:—

"Having used your Laxative Salz BU-LAX for over two years I take pleasure in recommending same as far superior to anything of the kind I have ever taken. Bubier's Laxative Salz is an indispensable medicine in my household."

CHARLES E. HARWOOD.

That is genuine testimony from one who is well known in the business and political circles of New England, and ought to convince any one of the real merit of BU-LAX

GIRL SUES COOPERAGE MAGNATE FOR $60,000 TO HEAL HEART

Declares He Courted Her Without Telling of Invalid Wife and Four Children.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Miss Nina May Stone, a beautiful Southern girl now living at the Women's Hotel, the Martha Washington, who is suing John D. Hollingshead, the cooperage magnate, for $60,000 on the ground that he made love to her and induced her to prepare for marriage when he already had a sick wife and four children, declares that she believes the man hoped that the death of his invalid wife would enable him to carry out his plans.

In her bill of complaint she says she found out about the wife, now under treatment in Colorado Springs, and confronted Hollingshead with the facts. She says he admitted them but represented that his wife was very ill and begged her not to sever their friendship.

From this circumstance Miss Stone thinks that Hollingshead hoped to continue their acquaintance till after his wife died, then persuade her to marry him after all.

Subsequently, Hollingshead made several efforts to compromise the matter and stave off a suit, so Miss Stone's attorneys declare. But they say they will push the matter to the last legal limit.

Miss Stone had been living in Chicago. She met Hollingshead last October. After a brief acquaintance they became engaged, the fair complainant affirms. Hollingshead wrote her sixty love letters, replete with endearing phrases. He induced her to leave Chicago, come to New York and study dramatics. She says that, if she had not left Chicago she would have discovered the real condition of affairs before now. It chanced that in this city she met a woman who knew the Hollingsheads. The present suit at law resulted.

Hollingshead is president of the J. D. Hollingshead Company of No. 218 La Salle street, Chicago, which is affiliated with the Cooperage Trust.

GIRL SUING MILLIONAIRE FOR $60,000

GUESTS OF THE AMERICAN PACK WONDERLAND

Many Thousands Enjoy Last Week of Season at Magic City by the Sea.

The parade of the nations, the flower carnival, and the scene from Venice in the lagoon, were all big features at Wonderland last evening and will continue until the season closes next Sunday night. The day was an ideal one, and in the evening the electric city was thronged by pleasure seekers. The arena performance, with the equestrian bear, the slide for life, and McPhee and Hill, the acrobatic marvels, all came in for their full share of appreciation. Nothing like the "Electric Steam Scintillator" was ever seen before at Wonderland, and in itself it is one of the biggest drawing cards that the manager has ever had. No two programs are alike. The mysterious workings of the great steam clouds are controlled only by the action of the winds, and with the beautiful and vivid electric lights playing upon them from every side, the effect is fascinating.

"Fire and Flames," besides being remarkably spectacularly, employs the largest number of assistants and actors of any of the attractions at Wonderland. To some of them it has been their first introduction to the show business. "When I was a very little boy," said the manager of "Fire and Flames" last night, "my father used to take me to see the old one-ring circus that always came to our town in Indiana every year. Of course, I always thought it must be perfectly grand to travel about under the snowy dome of a circus tent, and there were lots of sleepless nights for me as I thought of how I would some day ride a cream-white prancing horse and dive boldly through paper hoops that some giddy harlequin might hold before me.

Many Stage-Struck.

"I finally did strike into the show business, after all, and I think sometimes that it would have been just as well if I hadn't have had those rosy dreams about actor folks, and their glittering, glorious career.

"You'd be surprised," he said, continuing, "to know what a lot of young stage-struck boys and girls strike Wonderland looking for a chance to develop their 'histrionic talent,' as they are pleased to call it. I know that I have had at least twenty come to me since the season opened and, as a rule, I have given them all a chance to see the inside of the business. Some of 'em got sick of it after two or three performances and others stuck it out a week. I never had but one, however, who lasted more than that time."

"This chap came into the park looking pretty woe-begone. His shoes were all tattered and dusty and he was a pretty hard-looking object. But there was a pathetic little twist to the corner of his mouth and I saw at once that he was just a good country boy who had probably ran away from home to 'be an actor.' He told me frankly that he was dead broke and, in fact, hardly knew what he was going to do for his 'chuck' unless he wrote home to his old dad, and he didn't want to do that. Pride, I suppose.

Now Company Captain.

"Well, I gave him a chance and, by gracious, he surprised me. I never saw a more willing fellow than he was and he wasn't afraid of anything that walked on two or four legs. Some of the boys in the show started to have a little fun with him the first day he joined us, but he demonstrated that even if he was straight off the farm from Manchester he could use his hands as well as the next one. To make a long story short, I've had him advanced along from one post to another until he's captain of one of the fire companies in the show now. He says he likes the fire fighting business so well that he's going to try to get on the Boston department. I know the young fellow pretty well now, and if he shows any of the pluck that he did with "Fire and Flames" he'll be a real fire chief some day."

A famous female band of fifty pieces has been engaged for the last four days of the season and it is quite certain that no program of free attractions will be more extensive and diversified than that now arranged for the grand closing of the great white city.

SAYS KAISER NEEDS SOUND PESSIMISM

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—The Kaiser's reference to pessimists, saying that they should all leave the country, is being freely criticised by the newspapers of all parties. The National Zeitung says that men in responsible places who in large words proclaim magnificent deeds not performed, who seek friendships where they are not wanted, and who to every quarrel this world must contribute their "Bravo," need a good deal of sound pessimism.

$25 PRICE OF LIFE IN RUSSIAN MASSACRE

The Soldiers Spared Jews for Money—140 Dead Bodies Found in Streets.

WARSAW, Russia, Sept. 12.—A correspondent who was permitted to visit Siedlce, the scene of the recent massacre, talked with a number of Jews who has had survived and was told that scores had saved their lives by payment to the soldiers of $25 each.

By actual count 140 bodies were picked up in the streets, and it is said as many more are hidden in the cellars. Train loads of fugitives are leaving for the south.

Only one Christian is known to have been killed and, so far as can be learned, no soldier was killed.

Stores and shops in the town were closed and showed signs of having been plundered. The streets were littered with Jews' hats and damaged clothing. In Dienka street the houses were riddled with bullets.

A refugee states that when the doctors in the Jewish hospital lighted the gas in order to operate on seventy wounded who had been brought in the soldiers opened fire without warning on the hospital, killing two of the inmates.

A man, who with his wife and newborn child was on his way to the hospital, was fired on by soldiers and the woman and child were killed.

FAVORS TRANSFER OF TROOPS BY TROLLEY

The advantages of transportation of troops by trolley, where conditions permit, are upheld in the report, just issued, of General Joseph Whitney, commanding the Second Brigade, M. V. M., on the recent tour of duty at Camp Bancroft, South Framingham.

"I consider that the experience of this tour shows that transportation of troops and baggage by trolley lines is entirely satisfactory," he says.

STENSLAND NOW ON BOAT BOUND FOR NEW YORK

Fugitive's Attempt at Fatal Jump Blocked by Alert Guards.

Special Cable to Boston American.

TANGIER, Sept. 12.—Paul O. Stensland, who is wanted in Chicago for wrecking the Milwaukee Avenue Bank, was taken on board the steamship Prinz Adelbert of the Hamburg-American line to-day. Stensland was in custody of Assistant States Attorney Olsen of Chicago. His guard attended him until he was put on board the steamer from a tug. The steamer sailed at once for New York.

An authoritative source of information furnished the Hearst News correspondent with the true story of Stensland's attempt at suicide Monday night. The banker did not take poison, as was at first announced, but made an attempt to throw himself from the roof of his temporary prison.

It was a hot night and the guards had permitted Stensland to walk upon the roof, he being in an exceedingly nervous condition. The defaulter had been walking up and down for some time when he made a sudden move as if to throw himself from the parapet. The guards immediately sprang upon their prisoner and after a struggle compelled him to go down from the roof.

Stensland was greatly exhausted by the struggle and collapsed. A doctor was called, and finally succeeded in quieting the prisoner, who maintained quietude until his embarkation.

THEOSOPHISTS PLAN TO EXPOSE FRAUDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Colonel H. S. Olcott, president of the International Theosophical Society, has arrived here with a retinue of fellow-theosophists preparatory to the opening of the annual convention of the society next Sunday. Several of the meetings will be given over to exposures of the methods of "fraudulent spiritists and other psychic impostors."

TOO MANY WANT TO FIGHT MORAN SAYS QUINCY

State Chairman Perplexed to Choose Among Hosts Who Would Enter Race.

BIG SURPRISE TO FRIENDS

A plethora of Democratic candidates all ready and eager to make the fight against John B. Moran, and not a dearth of them, as has been generally supposed, is the cause of all of Josiah Quincy's trouble. The drawn expression worn by the Gaston leader for the past few weeks is not due to worry over inability to find a candidate, but to sleepless nights passed as a result of how best to choose from the horde of aspirants for the honor.

Chairman Quincy himself is responsible for this information, which will be cheerful news to his friends who have stuck firmly to him in the storm and stress of the past few weeks, confident of his ability to bring order out of chaos. Mr. Quincy vouchsafed this news to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter when asked how the organization viewed the candidacy of William H. McMasters. Mr. Quincy said:

"Deluged With Suggestions."

"While Mr. McMasters is a candidate, it should be understood that the organization has not put him in the field. We shall assume the same attitude towards his candidacy as towards many others who are willing to take the honor. In every mail I am deluged with suggestions in regard to candidates or with offers from prominent Democrats who are willing to make the running. The candidacy of Mr. McMasters, as well as that of all the others, will receive the serious consideration of the Committee of Seven when it meets to-morrow."

Kept Secret From Leaders.

Quincy has kept the fact that he has candidates galore in sight a secret from the other leaders. Sullivan, McNamee and Chairman Arthur Lyman of the Executive Committee all said yesterday that there was "nothing doing." Quincy's statement will be cheering news.

Who these candidates are who are willing to make the fight Chairman Quincy would not disclose.

Reuben Rush, the executive clerk of the committee, when asked about this new phase of the situation, stopped figuring up how much is due him in back salary long enough to confirm Chairman Quincy's statement. From every corner of the State suggestions of candidates and candidacies have sprung. Ashby, it is understood, will send a solid delegation of one pledged to her favorite son. Gosnold and Gay Head, which have not cast a Democratic vote in three years, but which this year will hold caucuses and each send one delegate to the convention, will according to information received by Chairman Quincy, instruct those delegates to vote for a favorite son of Dukes County whose name will be sprung as a surprise upon the convention. West Tisbury and Chilmark will follow the lead of Gosnold and Gay Head.

McMasters Alone in Field.

William H. McMasters, editor of the Commonwealth, is the only avowed candidate in the field at present. He says he will be a candidate regardless of what the plans of Quincy and the machine may be, at the same time expressing the opinion that they have no plans. McMasters for several weeks past has been sending throughout the State copies of his weekly containing vicious attacks upon John B. Moran. He declares that all he got out of Quincy for this was the bare cost of printing the paper and mailing it. The nomination, he says, is no more than his due for the work he has been doing. Unlike McNamee, he says he will not insist on a large campaign fund.

The Committet of Seven appointed at the Thorndike conference will hold a meeting to-morrow afttrnoon, providtd Congressman Sullivan is successful in getting a quorum. At the last conference scheduled only Edward L. Arundel of Lawrence, the brewer, Arthur Lyman and Josiah Quincy showed up. To get a quorum was necessary to add Congressman Sullivan to the committee.

Members Fail to Appear.

Mayor John T. Coughlin of Fall River, J. T. Shea of Fitchburg, N. J. Skerrett of Worcester and John C. Burke of Lowell did not appear and no word has been received from thtm yet saying they will serve.

The executive committee, of which Arthur Lyman is chairman, will meet in a few days to name the permanent officers of the convention and the committee-at-large on resolutions. Former Mayor John W. Coughlin of Fall River, who was seriously considered for the position of permanent chairman, has now been eliminated, it is said, because he is understood to be friendly to Moran.

Gaston's confidential man, Edward F. McSweeney, is the latest possibility mentioned. McSweeney will not sit in the convention as a delegate from his own ward, but he will undoubtedly secure some one else's credential. Should the Gaston crowd attempt to force him on the convention a bitter cotnest will be precipitated.

Beer is a Temperance Drink

Statistics will Show that Its Increasing Sales Bring a Corresponding Decrease in Drunkenness.

To show the effect of beer drinking on the health, Dr. P. Bauer, of Berlin, a distinguished German scientist and professor, makes a report on the health of the 75 employees of a German brewery. This report is of especial interest just at this time because of the increasing popularity of beer in the United States, as shown by the recent report of the commissioner of internal revenue that during the past year the people of the United States drank 160,000,000 more gallons of beer than during any other year in the history of the nation, and there is less intemperance than ever before.

In speaking of the results of his investigation, Dr. Bauer says:

"Of the seventy-five employees, each of whom drinks over a gallon of beer daily, 56 have stood the rigid physical examination for enrollment in the German army and are soldiers; of the remaining eighteen, eleven are minors, three were found too small in stature, and four were rejected for defects suffered by accident."

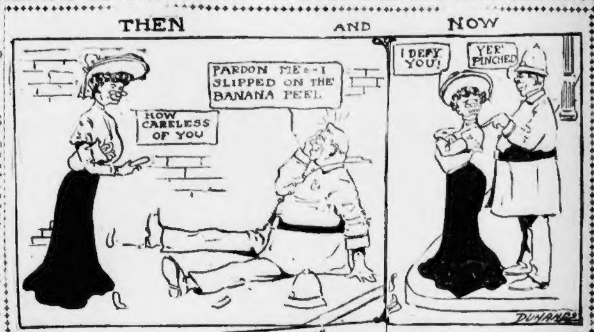

Leading physicians have said there is no doubt whatever of the healthfulness of good beer, and most of them recommend Pabst Blue Ribbon. Barley malt, the soul of beer, gives it certain food value, and the small percentage of alcohol, only 3½ per cent, in Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer, is an aid to digestion.

In the brewing of beer, the richer the malt the more wholesome the beer. Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is brewed only from Pabst exclusive eight-day malt, choicest imported hops and pure water. Pabst exclusive eight-day malt is grown from finest selected barley and grown slowly, without any rushed development, so that the malt retains all the food elements of the grain in predigested form. This is what makes Pabst Beer the superior of all beers in food strength. It is always absolutely pure and clean, the most refreshing and nourishing beverage, the best beer for the home.

OLICE SAY "PARDON ME" NO MORE BUT RUN RUBBISH THROWERS IN

ARK AND GLOOMY POSSIBILITIES SUGGESTED BY ANTI-RUBBISH EDICT

The police had to speak civilly to all persons—but —

Now can promptly "run them in."

Only Ray of Light in Gloom is for "Snipers," for Street Is Only Place for "Butts."

It is expected that the new "Spotless Town" order of Police Commissioner O'Meara is to be more effective than ever, now that the cops don't have to enforce it civilly.

When the commissioner promulgated his order, cautioning the public not to throw rubbish of any sort in the streets, he gave the public until September 10 to practice the new rule. He said:

"Up to and including September 10 the police will speak civilly to all persons whom they see violating this ordinance and request them to remove as well as possible the effects of the offence. Should they refuse or should they again offend they will be summoned into court.

"After September no warning will be given."

This means that now the cop can promptly run in offenders. Hitherto, if a man threw a banana skin on the pave and a copper discovered this by slipping down on it, the copper had to call the man's attention to the circumstance "civilly."

Now All is Changed.

He might say: "Pardon me, but will you kindly notice that I have fallen down on the honorable banana peel which you inadvertently deposited on the sidewalk."

As the offender was supposed to "remove the effect of the offence," he might get a bottle of arnica and rub the sore spots on the cop, caused by his hitting the sidewalk.

The sniper may still "sleuth" along the curbstones.

But that's all off now. Hereafter, if you fresco the sidewalk with banana peel, the cop can run you in and you can tell the court all about it.

If you are riding down to your office in the trolley and throw your newspaper into the street when you are through reading it, don't be surprised if a cop hauls you off the car and takes you to the station house.

If You Fresco the Sidewalk with Banana Peel, You Will Have to Tell the Court About It.

If Mamie buys a chunk of chewing gum and throws the wrapper in the street the cop may tap her gently on her plump shoulder and escort her into arrest, gum and all.

"Snipers" are considerably worried by the new order. The "sniper" is he who picks up cigar and cigarette butts from the sidewalk, gutter or ash barrel. The "sniper" is pretty numerous about town, too, strange as it may seem to people who refer to smoke cigars "in the original package."

Don't Hit "Snipers."

These butt collectors have feared that their source of supply would be cut off. But the commissioner rules that a butt may be safely thrown into the gutter or roadway, but not in rubbishy corners or in rubbish barrels where it might set fire to something. So the "sniper" may still sleuth along the curbstone and gather his second-hand Havana as of old.

The men who go about in city carts and gather ashes and refuse are being hit by the new order considerably. They have had a pleasing habit of spilling a peck or more of rubbish out of every barrel they dumped into the cart. Their trail could be followed easily from the odds and ends of ashes, paper and what not left on the roadside.

Now they must be careful and make a real collection and not a near one.

LABOR HOPES TO DEFEAT CANNON

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Professing to be encouraged by the result of the fight made by organized labor leaders against Congressman Littlefield of Maine, Illinois labor leaders assert that they will now turn their attention to "Uncle Joe" Cannon and try to encompass his defeat next November.

Speaker Cannon journeyed to Maine to help Littlefield, and the labor unions of Illinois have a rod in pickle for him on that account as well as for the reason that he, like the Maine man, opposed the legislative program mapped out by President Gompers of the Federation of Labor.

TO OUST HEAD OF POOR FARM

The Melrose overseers of the poor have asked Superintendent Harry W. Worth of Pratt Farm, Melrose, to resign.

On August 30 Mr. Worth received a letter from the board asking for his resignation without giving any reasons, and stating that he would be given two days to answer it. Mr. Worth failed to reply, and on September 1 he received a similar missive.

Mr. Worth said that the affair was a great injustice to him, and to turn him out at this time of the year after the hard work was done. He said that he had never heard the board complain of his methods.

The superintendent receives $50 per annum and his wife, who acts as matron, receives no compensation. He has held the position for the past two years.

The overseers refuse to talk other than say that it is for the best interests of the farm.

ARMY OF 100,000 CHILDREN TO-DAY MARCH TO SCHOOL

HIS LONG HOLIDAY IS OVER—"GOOD MORNING, TEACHER!"

Comparatively Few Will Go Without Seats; Lack of Room Only Through Shifting of People.

Boston schools opened with an attendance of nearly 100,000 children to-day. Comparatively few children are without seats. Whatever lack of room there is has been caused by the shifting of population during the vacation months. As the necessity for more room is made clear, Chairman Storrow of the School Board states, it will be provided.

"Although it is hard to say anything definite for a few days I think we will as usual be able to find a seat for every child entering the public schools," said James J. Storrow, chairman of the School Board to-day.

"Of course, on account of the rapidly fluctuating condition of our population it is impossible to foresee with any degree of accuracy in just what districts an excess of pupils will present itself. The only thing to do is to wait until the exigency arises and then we meet it as well as we know how.

Will Look at Crowded School.

"I have been informed that the Washington School is somewhat crowded, and I will go there to-day and see just what the situation is.

With reference to the letter recently addressed to the School Committee by Governor Guild, stating that over 100 Boston children were at work under fourteen years of age, in direct violation of the child labor ordinance, Mr. Storrow said:

"We have asked the Governor for more data. While we do not doubt that his information is correct, in order to remedy the evil it is necessary to give our truant officers full particulars as to the identity of these children and as to the location of the factories where they are working.

To Seek For Law Violators.

"This is not, however, a bad condition of affairs, for when we consider that there are nearly 100,000 children enrolled in the Boston schools, the number found by the Governor is not a large percentage. Of course, we are anxious to prevent every case of such violations whenever possible and will take the matter up at once on receipt of further information from His Excellency.

Mr. Storrow says that there are more teachers to be had than are needed.

Some confusion is expected at first from the operation of the new rule limiting pupils to attendance at schools in their respective districts. One effect of this rule will be to prevent the overcrowding of certain schools like the Prince School on Newbury street and the Oliver Wendell Holmes School in Dorchester, preferred by parents in different parts of the city for social reasons. Hereafter only pupils living in those districts will be admitted to these schools.

Some important changes in certain of the elementary courses will be inaugurated to-day by Superintendent Stratton D. Brooks, who enters upon his term of six years as head of the Boston school system with the determination to keep it at the head of the school systems of the country.

BUYS STICKNEY & SMITH STORE

Francis P. O'Connor of New York, formerly of this city, has purchased the business of the house of Stickney & Smith of No. 157 Tremont street, dealers in women's and misses' cloaks, suits and waists. Mr. O'Connor's friends of his earlier days in Boston are glad that he has risen to his present opportunities.

Mr. O'Connor was formerly buyer and manager with the Jordan Marsh Company. Then he went to New York as buyer for Simpson, Crawford & Simpson. At present he is buyer for the Adams-O'Neil store of that city. His Boston experience and his subsequent one in New York have combined to give him a wide business acquaintance.

In assuming the ownership of the Stickney & Smith concern Mr. O'Connor has planned extensive alterations. These are just now under way in the building at No. 157 Tremont street.

On account of these construction changes it is necessary to clean up considerable of the stock. To do this sweeping reductions in prices have been ordered. A particular feature of this is the reduction, to go into effect to-morrow, in the prices of women's suits.

MANIAC TRIES TO KILL LAWYER

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—C. H. Roberts, an attorney, had a terrific struggle with a maniac at his office, No. 17 North Juniper street, late yesterday, who attempted to kill him. The man gave his name as Warren McCurdy, forty-eight years, of Boston, Mass. McCurdy called on the lawyer. Yesterday while in conversation, McCurdy, it is believed, became temporarily insane. Suddenly pulling from his pocket a big revolver he pressed the muzzle against Mr. Roberts's breast and pulled the trigger. Fortunately the chamber was unloaded. Instantly Mr. Roberts punched his would-be murderer in the face, stunning him. He was quickly disarmed and locked up. McCurdy will be given a hearing this morning.

AUTO BALKS; MAN BURNS IT

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 12.—Annoyed because his automobile would not run, H. E. Hille of St. Louis deliberately burned the machine in Billtown, ten miles east of here. Mr. Hille said he was on his way from Indianapolis, and as the machine would not work he would not bother longer with it, but would render it valueless to any one who tried to take possession of it.

While driving along the road the machine stopped and the chauffeur tried in vain to start it. A crowd gathered and boys began taunting the owner. An old man driving a team passed and asked Mr. Hille why he did not get a horse or else walk.

Mr. Hille became angry. He went to a store and obtained a gallon of coal oil, which he poured over the machine and then set it on fire.

HUMIDITY, 90; TO BE WARMER

The general "stickiness" of the atmosphere to-day is due to the excessive humidity, which, according to the Weather Bureau, is 90 per cent., 20 per cent more than normal. At 10 o'clock to-day the temperature was 74 degrees, and it is steadily climbing, and will probably reach 82 before night.

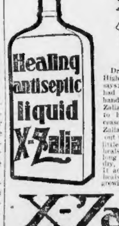

At midnight the temperature was 64 degrees, where it remained until 6 o'clock this morning. It has since been steadily gaining. Promised showers to-morrow will afford the only relief.

300 WELLESLEY FRESHMEN.

WELLESLEY, Sept. 12.—With the closing of the enrollment on Sept. 30, it is expected the college books will bear the names of 300 freshmen, which means a banner year for the college. It has been found necessary to rent a large house in the village as a dormitory.

CONNECTICUT DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION

Demand for Election of Judges by the People Stricken From Platform.

WALLER FOR CHAIRMAN

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 12.—Much of the work of the opening session of the Democratic State Convention last night devolved upon the several committees that went into the session after the main part of the convention had taken a recess for the night. This was especially true of the committee on resolutions which battled with the several paragraphs of the platform until nearly midnight, with the result that there was little left of the original draft after the committee got through with it.

Ex-Governor Thomas M. Waller of New London, and Judge A. Heaton Robertson, of New Haven, were the principal opponents of the platform as it was framed, and through their efforts a clause calling for the election of Supreme and Superior Court judges by the people was stricken out.

So many amendments and erasures were made in the original platform submitted by Delegate Comstock of Montville that it was finally voted that the chairman appoint a committee of ten to draft a new set of resolutions and present them to the committee to-day.

The committee on permanent organization selected ex-Governor Waller to preside over the convention as chairman to-day. Edwin S. Thomas of New Haven was chosen as permanent secretary.

The only contest on the State ticket appears to be that for the office of treasurer, with Davis Baker, of Ashford, and E. S. Roberts, of North Canaan, as the candidates.

PROBE 3 MYSTERIOUS FIRES IN NORTH END

POLICE AND FIREMEN INVESTIGATE BLAZES IN HANCOCK SCHOOL AND 2 TENEMENTS.

The police and firemen of the North End are to-day busily investigating three fires, two of them being of mysterious origin, and the one in the John Hancock School in Parmenter street being undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. All three fires started between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning.

At 1:45 o'clock Box 753, located in the corridors of the John Hancock School, was pulled. When Lieutenant P. A. Grant of Engine Company 8, arrived at the school there was no sign of fire. The doors were all fastened, as were the windows opening into the schoolrooms. It was necessary to force the doors leading into the basement. As soon as this was done the firemen encountered a burst of flame and smoke.

The fire was soon found in a pile of boxes and rubbish in the boiler room in the basement. A chemical engine was used and the blaze soon extinguished. The damage was not more than $25. Everything indicated to Lieutenant Grant that the fire was the work of an incendiary. The fact that the building had been closed and that the fire had started in the pile of boxes and rubbish in the engine room indicated that it was the work of some mischievous boy or some person who, firing the rubbish, lost heart and dashed to the box, pulled it and made his escape through a basement window, two or three of which were found to be open.

Janitor Edward B. Clark, who was working around the school building yesterday, thinks that some person slipped in and waited until he had left the building, when the pile of rubbish was collected for the igniting of the fire.

The fire at No. 14 Cooper street, a five-story brick tenement building, started at 1:25 o'clock. It was in a closet in the basement. Some paper and rubbish which had been collected there was fired in some strange way. For a time a small panic reigned in the tenement and many persons fled from the building, but the firemen soon extinguished the flames. Lieutenant Grant does not believe that any person who fired the rubbish in the tenement building would have had time to leave there, go to the Hancock school and start that blaze.

The police and firemen for that reason do not connect these fires, although they were in the same neighborhood. The damage at No. 14 Cooper street will not amount to more than $5.

The fire in Salem street at about the same time also started in a small pile of paper in an entryway. Policeman Cavanaugh discovered the blaze and stamped it out with his feet. He thinks that some passerby carelessly tossed a lighted cigarette or cigar stump into it.

Dennis Doherty of Mt. Vernon street, Charlestown, who had been placed under detention about the time that the fire in the schoolhouse was discovered, was released to-day, as Lieutenant Grant recognized him and declared that a mistake had been made. Mr. Doherty has often assisted the firemen in extinguishing fires before this and he is well known to them. He was arrested while assisting them at their work early to-day.

KING ALFONSO SUES MOTHER

MADRID, Sept. 12.—Again there are rumors of a breach between King Alfonso XIII. and his royal mother, the Dowager Queen Maria Christina. This time the difference takes the form of a lawsuit. Not only the King himself but his sister, Maria Teresa, and his brother-in-law, Prince Charles of Bourbon, are parties to the suit.

The suit involves upward of $2,000,000, which the queen-mother sent to her mother, the Archduchess Isabella, before the death of the latter, to be deposited in Austrian and London banks. In the absence of a will of the late archduchess her grandchildren claim the money as part of their legal heritage. This the queen-mother denies, saying that the funds are her own personal property.

KILL STURGIS LAW IS NOW MAINE'S CRY

Democrats Declare Republicans Must Do This to Save Party.

SAY PROHIBITION IS FARCE

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12.—That the voters of Maine have tired of the Sturgis law and the acknowledged failure of the prohibition movement, as shown by their blow to the Republican party in the State election, is the statement of William M. Pennell, Democratic sheriff of Cumberland County, and other prominent persons.

"It means," declares Mr. Pennell today, "that the people have become sick of prohibition hypocrisy.

"I believe that had our State convention not stopped at advocating re-submission in its platform, but had added a belief in local option, that Governor Cobb would have been defeated.

"In my opinion, one of the first things the Republican Legislature will do next Winter, as a means of saving the party from further defeat, will be to repeal the Sturgis law.

"I believe, too, that the next Legislature will vote to re-submit to the people the constitutional prohibitory amendment.

"It may seem a little advanced, but I predict that two years hence you will see in the Republican platform a declaration in favor of high license, local option. Local option is sure to come in this State within a very few years."

Prominent Republicans throughout Maine admit that the Sturgis enforcement law and the Republican opposition to the resubmission proposition were the chief elements which combined to cause the Republican slump.

Chairman Seth M. Carter of the Republican committee says:

"I ascribe the Republican loss largely to the liquor question. The cities went heavily on the liquor question. The country stood up to the prohibitory law."

Dr. Jones of Waterville, the chairman of the Democratic State Committee, is well pleased with the result, and says: "We shall continue fighting. That is about as much of a forecast of the future of the Democratic party as I care to make it at this time."

SHOT AT SUPPER TABLE.

MOULTREE, Ga., Sept. 12.—While sitting at his supper table surrounded by his family John A. Johnson, former county commissioner, was assassinated. The shot was fired through a hole in the chimney.

Patrick M. Joyce of No. 176 Athens street was removed in an unconscious condition to the City Hospital yesterday afternoon and was later taken to his home in an ambulance, prostrated from overwork.

FORMER FIRE COMMISSIONER LAUDS MORAN

"Fearless and Honest," Declares John R. Murphy, Home from Europe.

OWNERSHIP A SUCCESS

District Attorney John B. Moran is praised as "fearless and honest" in an interview given out to-day by ex-Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy, who has just returned from a trip abroad.

While across the water Mr. Murphy looked into the municipal ownership problem, as worked out over there. He says there seems to be no trouble about municipalities making a success of the matter.

In his interview he said:

"I am out of politics, although I shall not cease to take an interest in public affairs. District Attorney Moran is thoroughly fearless and honest in his performance of public duty, and he has a lot of material to work on in municipal affairs.

"Having been away for over two months, I have not had a chance to size up the situation, but I heard enough abroad about Boston affairs to indicate that there are lively times ahead.

"I had a most interesting trip and was greatly impressed with my visit to England. The two old parties in that country fear a breaking-up and the formation of a new one among the working classes. There are now about forty labor members of Parliament, and the aristocracy is beginning to tremble. The labor movement will certainly revolutionize political conditions in England.

"I was greatly impressed with the progress made in England as regards public ownership of public utilities, as regards railway systems, and there appears to be no trouble about the municipality managing them, and successfully, too.

"The English are pretty good friends of ours, but not so with the Germans, who are giving them a hustle for the world's markets.

"England has its political grafters just like Boston and other places and relegate them to the rear more than we do.

"The condition of Ireland was never better and in talking with English and Scotch members of Parliament, they predict a measure of home rule which will pass both the Commons and the Lords."

MAYOR GIVES WELCOME TO 600 FIREMEN

State Association Gathers at Worcester for 27th Annual Convention.

WORCESTER, Sept. 12.—The first session of the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Massachusetts State Firemen's Association, in session in Association Hall, Elm street, to-day, was called to order by President Edward F. Dahill of New Bedford, the leader of the State association. Six hundred or more delegates were present.

This afternoon's programme opened with an address by Mayor John T. Duggan, who, with Chief George S. Coleman of Worcester and Howard T. Gleason, chairman of the fire committee, welcomed the firemen, President Dahill of the State association responding.

The roll of honor was read by Secretary D. Arthur Burt of Taunton. Various committees were then appointed and standing committees passed in their reports for the year's work.

Chairmen Make Reports.

While the delegates were busy at the night session, the wives of the local firemen tendered the visiting ladies a theatre party in the Franklin Square Theatre.

Chief E. S. Hosmer of Lowell, chairman of the $15,000 relief fund committee, made his report, which was followed by a report by Hon. George F. Harwood of Lynn, chairman of the Massachusetts committee in charge of the fund. Other reports were made by Captain William Brophy of Boston, chairman of the legislative committee, and George G. Tidsbury of Ashland, Mass., chairman of the pamphlet committee. Addresses were made by Dr. G. H. Hill and Hon. I. E. Comins of this city.

The delegates were given a reception in the fire patrol headquarters, Barton place, by the Worcester protective department.

To-morrow morning's session will open at 9:30. Chief W. B. Randlett of Newton, as chairman of the auditing committee, is down for the first speech of the day. Other speakers will be Rev. G. S. Shaw of Ashby and James F. McKissock of Lowell.

Elect Officers Friday.

At the afternoon session to-morrow E. R. Hardy of the New York Insurance Exchange, Captain J. J. Cashman of New York, C. H. Downing of Lynn and Rev. Alan Hudson of Brockton will speak.

At the convention to-morrow an exhibition class of Dedham fire department will give an exhibition of the emergency aid work. Captain William Brophy of Boston will deliver an address at the night session.

On Friday, the final day of the convention, officers for the coming year will be chosen.

WORKMEN PLAN TO LEAVE SPAIN

MADRID, Sept. 12.—Twenty workmen's unions of the town of Bejar have addressed a circular to the Presidents of American republics, begging them to provide ways and means to enable their members of emigrate and establish colonies wherever they may be wanted. The reason they give for wanting to emigrate is that though they are industrious they cannot make a living in Spain; besides, there are local grievances, mainly sweating by employers. Six hundred families, mostly of skilled clothmakers, are ready to emigrate.

SEEKS TO AID DEPOSITORS

A receivers' report at present on the defunct Provident Securities and Banking Company would be detrimental to the best interests of the depositors, according to A. S. Hall, one of the receivers. Speaking for himself and for C. F. Weed, the other receiver, Mr. Hall said to-day:

"The receivers have no objection to making a report to the court at any time, and are ready to report any day. It would probably be detrimental to the best interests of depositors in the bank if a full statement of all conditions is published now, while certain negotiations are pending from which it is hoped realizations may be made."

Bibber, druggist of Richmond, one box each of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, using freely, according to directions—result, wonderful and satisfactory. At this writing my hands are perfectly well. I have secured a second instalment of the Cuticura Remedies, and do not intend to discontinue the use of either." Wm. MAYOR'S FIGHT WITH LOMASNEY TO STIR CITY

War in Every Ward Will Follow Failure of the "Harmony" Deal.

WARD 8 MEN CONFIDENT

The renewal of the factional fight between Mayor Fitzgerald and Martin M. Lomasney, the Ward 8 leader, means war in almost every ward in Boston.

The latest phase to the situation was the Mayor's tentative offer last night of administration support to Former Chairman W. T. A. Fitzgerald of the Democratic City Committee as a candidate for Registrar of Deeds.

Another candidate for that nomination is Alderman William J. Hennessey of Ward 20, who was a strong supporter in the primary and mayoralty campaigns of one year ago. This move by the Mayor, politicians say, will cause a deep rift among his supporters in Dorchester, besides mixing county politics with that of the city to an unprecedented degree. For years party lines have not been sharply drawn in county fights. The tendency at present is in the opposite direction. There are court clerks to be elected this Fall as well.

Senate Fight Is Ominous.

The contest for the nomination in the Third Suffolk senatorial district is the black cloud on the local Democratic horizon. It will prolong and intensify the row which attended the mayoralty campaign. The harmony plan fell through because the Mayor could not get former Alderman Edward W. Dixon of Ward 6 to withdraw as a senatorial candidate. Councilman Daniel J. Kiley, the Ward 8 candidate, was willing to retire in favor of any Fitzgerald men except Dixon and Tom Grady.

The harmony plan provided for the nomination of Councilman Philip J. McGonagle of Ward 6 for the Senate and Kiley for the House. When it fell through Kiley renewed his campaign with aggressive vigor. He is particularly active in Ward 4, Cambridge, which is a part of the Third District.

Mayor Fitzgerald's final move to secure peace with Lomasney was made yesterday when he sent his brother Henry to the Ward 8 leader and asked the latter to accept Dixon as a candidate. Ward 8's refusal was positive. Then the Mayor declared the aristice off.

There are many Ward 8 men holding city jobs. That has been the case ever since Lomasney became a leader in his district. He has kept his men at work under Democratic and Republican administrations alike. He fought Josiah Quincy when the latter was mayor and the Quincy administration came near driving Lomasney men out of city employment in droves, but never had the courage when it came to a pinch to make this reprisal.

Lomasney Is Undefined.

At City Hall to-day it is predicted that Mayor Fitzgerald will make this move of last resort. Lomasney shows no fear of it. He has no fear that it would break his mastery of his district.

Unlike many other district leaders, Lomasney insists upon official competency on the part of the men he gets jobs for. He has never been given to the practice of getting on the city payroll men who did no more work than to draw pay. He is also one of the strongest Democrats in Massachusetts in shaping State legislation. Several Mayors have felt his power on Beacon Hill.

Kiley has been president of the Common Council and a leading figure in the House. When scarcely more than a boy he was one of the commissioners who, with Mayor Quincy parceled out city appropriations. Kiley blocked Quincy again and again, showing nerve, astuteness and a force which was astonishing in such a beardless youth. He has been Lomasney's chief lieutenant for years and is known personally in every nook and corner of the Third district.

He will make a campaign that cannot fail to worry the Mayor. If Kiley is nominated for the Senate, it will mean a hard blow at the administration prestige. Ward 8 is more eager than the Mayor for the fray.

Dixon Strong in Ward 6 Only.

Former Alderman Dixon has a strong personal following in Ward 6, but is weaker than Kiley in other parts of the district. He has been an ally of Lomasney in the past, and with the latter fought the Mayor in Ward 6. He never was enough of a fighter to suit Lomasney. Mutual distrust is a feature of Ward 6 politics.

The Third District senatorial fight is a contest which the Mayor cannot afford to lose. Ward 6 is the section which was his political stronghold before he lived in Concord and Dorchester and during his domicile in both places. If Kiely wins, it will not only be a great personal humiliation to Fitzgerald, but will discredit his administration.

He cannot pretend to to be on the fence in this fight, as he has in the Moran campaign and in the Tenth Congressional District battle.

The uncompromising attitude of Kiley and all Ward 8 is eloquent of confidence.

GARLAND DYING, CALL EXPERTS

HANOVER, Mass., Sept. 12.—In one last effort to save the life of James A. Garland, who is sinking rapidly at his home here, Dr. Briggs, the attending physician, ha ssummoned specialists from New York who are expected here in a few hours. Every effort is being exerted to prolong the life of the patient, in hopes that upon the arrival of the New York doctors, some action may be taken to save Mr. Garland's life.

According to Dr. Briggs, Mr. Garland will not survive the day unless his heart revives, and even in that case, it is a very remote probability that the life of the patient may be saved.

MILLIONAIRE LABORER WED HUB MUSIC PUPIL

MRS. LAURA BROWN McHARG. MISS MARY McINGLES.

Young H. K. McHarg, Jr., Independent in Matrimony as in Everything Else.

Married Laura Whitney Brown and Surprised Parents by Taking Her to Them in Europe.

Through an unobtrusive wedding notice in a New York daily newspaper there has just become known the secret marriage of Miss Laura Whiting Brown, a Boston musical student, to Henry K. McHarg, Jr., of Stamford, Ct., and New York, the multi-millionaire laborer.

Behind the little wedding notice lies a story of love and romance that fits in very happily with the already interesting career of young McHarg.

The news of this secret marriage is all the more interesting on account of a report that came out of the South one time that young McHarg was paying assiduous attention to Miss Mary McIngles, a Virginia belle. McHarg was friendly with Miss McIngles, but that was all. Miss McIngles herself, when taxed once with setting her cap for the young multimillionaire, denied it emphatically. The subsequent developments seem to show that there was nothing more between them than ordinary acquaintance.

Though the presumptive heir to about $20,000,000 McHarg has been actually laboring as a miner, wearing working clothes, associating with the miners and working as hard as any of them. He did this despite his parents' preference that he should live more as a gentleman of wealth and leisure. When it came to his choice of a wife, McHarg displayed the same independence, marrying first and telling his father and mother afterwards.

Parents Made Best of It.

His parents, when he came to them with a bride, were not any too pleased. But they had to accept the situation, whether or no. Now McHarg and his bride are honeymooning in Europe.

Henry K. McHarg, Sr., controls the Virginia Iron, Coke & Coal Company, an immense corporation, with mines, smelters, quarries and ovens in and about Radford, Va. He has big railroad holdings and other interests also, the whole comprising vast wealth.

When McHarg was graduated from Cornell he told his father he was going to Radford, Va., to work from the bottom up. His father smiled. His mother objected with feminine dismay at the thought of her son, with all the possibilities of social pleasure at his disposal, burying himself away in those Virginia mines. But McHarg, Jr., having said his say, departed for Virginia.

Just One of the "Hands."

There he was not the "old man's son." He was simply H. K. McHarg, Jr., one of the "hands." He toiled for twelve hours a day with a miner's pick. At the end of the week he stood in line with Huns, Slavs, Poles and all sorts of foreign-born and took $9 for his week's pay.

So he learned the business. He rose to be superintendent of the furnaces. The smelting of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of ore was in his charge. He knew the smelting game, and the men under him respected him as a man who had earned what he was getting.

It happened that McHarg had occasion to come to Boston on business. At a gathering of some young people he was presented to Miss Laura Whiting Brown. He fell in love. With characteristic directness and determination he wooed Miss Brown. Maybe Miss Brown perceived that if McHarg wanted her he was pretty apt to get her, such being his way of doing things. At any rate she accepted him.

Cabled That He Was Coming.

None of McHarg's family knew about this, however. The parents were abroad. McHarg cabled early in August that he was going to take a trip over there and join them. They cabled back that they would be delighted to see him.

On the night of August 15, McHarg and Miss Brown, with a few intimate friends, went to St. Luke's Church in Brooklyn. There the couple were married by the Rev. Dr. Albert Hind. Then McHarg carried out his cabled promise to his parents. He did sail for Europe, the very next day. And he did join his parents over there.

With amazement the parents beheld the fair young woman who approached them with their son. With cheerful assurance young McHarg introduced his wife.

The elder McHargs are now back home, but their son, having earned a vacation and having taken unto himself a wife, is enjoying himself abroad.

FINED FOR SELLING MILK BELOW PAR

Professor James O. Jordan had five persons in the South Boston Court this morning charged with selling milk not up to the standard quality. John F. Schropel of No. 2 Fifth street, South Boston, was fined $25. He had been in court before on a similar complaint, and was fined more than the other four. Ellen Kellett, No. 38 Mercer street, was fined $15, as were Edward McCabe, No. 111 L street; Bessie Snyder, No. 250 Dorchester street, and Frank F. Crowley, No. 203 Dorchester street.

ROMANCE OF YALE BOY ENDS IN DIVORCE

Edwin K. Norton, Who Married Miss Josie A. Birney, While a Freshman, Brings Suit.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 12.—Love's young dream has been dissipated for Edwin Kenneth Norton, the Yale freshman, who last Winter eloped with Miss Josie Birney of this city. Papers in an action for divorce were filed in behalf of the youth yesterday. The complaint is on statutory grounds. Mrs. Norton flatly denies the charge, and says she will vigorously contest the case.

The romance of young Norton lasted only until the wedding, when affairs began to grow troublesome, although through no differences between the bridal pair. Yale practically forbids matrimony to its undergraduates, and the first question was how the bridegroom could continue his studies. It was finally decided that he would live as usual in the college, and that his wife would go to her parents, keeping her marriage, of course, a close secret.

Norton is a son of Edwin Norton, of No. 175 Riverside Drive, New York, who accumulated several millions in business in the West.

The youth had a liberal allowance, and from this he was to divert enough to support his wife. But with the details of board and schooling settled, another trouble arose in the shape of a law compelling the filing of statistics of the marriage. That let out the secret and the marriage was the talk of Yale. Now the reported divorce is a still greater sensation in college circles.

8-HOUR LAW BREAKING IS UP TO SANDERSON

Charging that C. A. Dodge & Co., contractors, of No. 8 Beacon street, Boston, are violating the eight-hour law which was passed by the State Legislature last June, a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN has filed complaint with District Attorney George K. Sanderson of Middlesex County and laid the facts in the case before that officer for the enforcement of the laws of the Commonwealth.

"I will investigate this matter," said District Attorney Sanderson. "I will examine the facts which you have brought to my notice and take the proper steps in the matter."

The specific charge is that C. D. Dodge & Co. are causing a gang of some twenty Italians to work more than eight hours a day and more than forty-eight hours a week in the construction of the new pumping station in the town of Arlington.

Contract Names Hours.

In their contract with the Metropolitan Water and eSwerage Board, C. A. Dodge & Co. stipulated that all of the laws of the Commonwealth would be observed in the completion of the pumping station in Arlington.

The foreman in charge of this gang of Italians, who are being worked in open violation of the laws of the Commonwealth, is George Robinson of No. 1 Concord square. Mr. Robinson said:

"Yes, I am working my gang nine hours a day. I employ about twenty men. My books are open to anybody. I pay the men by the hour. It will cost me about $2 a day for my help. I shall work them what hours I can."

Several of the Italians employed in the gang, told a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN that they were being worked at least nine hours a day and that they worked these hours for six days in the week. The names of these men have been presented to District Attorney George K. Sanderson.

Working Nine Hours a Day.

E. H. Downing of No. 1,261 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington Heights, and Jeremiah Crowley of No. 46 Brattle street, Arlington, declare that this gang has been working more than nine hours a day for many days.

District Attorney Sanderson said to the reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN:

"I will take this data you give me and look through it carefully at the first spare moment I have and take such action as seems legal and logical, and we will have further discussion later on if any is required."

The eight-hour law passed the General Court on June 22 of this year. It was learned at the offices of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board, No. 1 Ashburton place, that the contract had been signed for the building of the new pumping station in Arlington on August 23.

Law, Creation of Potts.

This law is the creation of the well-known labor man, John E. Potts. He said to a reporter: "The bill was one of the steps in the direction of an ultimate general eight-hour day for laboring men. It provides that for work done for the State of Massachusetts whether directly, through contractors, or through subcontractors, eight hours shall constitute a day's work and that workmen shall only work eight hours a day except when a Saturday half-holiday is given them when the hours may be increased so as to make a forty-eight hour week. The true interpretation is therefore that workmen in the employ of the State shall work only forty-eight hours a week."

Why Women Crave Liquor

They Become Drunkards Without Suspecting the Cause.

"Why do so many women crave liquors and drugs?" is a question often asked. Many women for no apparent reason, suddenly become slaves to the vices of drug taking or dram drinking and their families and friends cannot solve the mystery. "American Medicine," a magazine of high repute among physicians, says that this sudden taste for drugs and spirits not infrequently begins with indulgence in patent medicines, wines of this and wines of that, which are made up largely of poisonous drugs and stimulants which have done, and are doing, an incalculable amount of harm. There are hundreds of cases where women, apparently above contamination which would lead to these degrading vices, have suddenly acquired habits that are the despair of their friends and their ultimate destruction.

This matter is called to your attention so that you may know that there is at least one remedy that is free from the censure pronounced above. This is Father John's Medicine, which is made from the original prescription given by a regular physician. It is guaranteed. It builds the body, increases appetite, makes strength and gently restores the organs to their proper work

'YEGG' FREED IN VERMONT COMING TO HUB TO AID POLICE?

WINDSOR, Vt., Sept. 12.—John F. McCarthy, the celebrated "yeggman," who was implicated in the Newfane bank robbery and who has served about two years in the prison here, is to-day practically free under a conditional pardon granted by Governor Bell.

McCarthy's petition for clemency bore the names of governors of southern states, United States district attorneys and post-office inspectors, directors of the bank which he tried to burglarize and others.

McCarthy will begin life over in Boston where he is said to have been offered a position by Chief Inspector of Police Watts.

Chief Watts when questioned last night as to the report that he has offered a position to John F. McCarthy, just pardoned from the Vermont prison, refused to discuss the matter more than to say: "If I were going to put him to work I would not talk about it."

BUTLER AMES WILL DEBATE WITH RIVAL

A MEDICINAL WINE

Valuable Tonic Preparation Made by Trappist Fathers d'Oka.

The most highly prized secular possession of the Trappist Fathers of the monastery Notre-Dame-du-Lac, at Oka, Canada, is the privilege of manufacturing the celebrated medicinal wine known as the Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Chinchona.

REV. FR. DEBREYNE.
Renowned Doctor of La Grande Trappe de Mortagne.

This privilege was granted and confirmed by the Rev. Father Dom Etienne, Abbot of La Grande Trappe, in a letter to the reverend fathers of La Trappe d'Oka, Canada. The wine is made after the formula discovered by the Rev. Father R. P. Debreyne, the renowned physician of La Grande Trappe de Mortagne, Orne, France. It contains the essential tonic principle of Cinchona bark; also valuable phosphates in soluble form. These medicinal ingredients are perfectly blended with pure wine.

The Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Cinchona is a delicious curative tonic. It is beautifully clear, never under any circumstances contains a precipitate or sediment, pleasant to take and wonderful in its results. It is especially recommended in cases of anemia, poor blood, debility resulting from overwork or illness, nervousness in any form, dyspepsia or insomnia.

It builds health and strength, it sharpens the appetite, it corrects the digestion, it soothes the nerves, it makes sweet restful sleep possible, it renews the vigor of the whole system.

Why should you see your dear one suffer and waste away? Why feel your own strength and energy growing less? The Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine saves suffering, sends the red blood racing through the veins and makes life worth living. Buy a bottle of your druggist today and try it.

Short Sleeves and Short Jackets Will Be Worn, While Dainty Shoulder Capes Are the Newest Addition to

FEMININE FASHION FADS FOR FALL

NEWEST SHORT JACKETS AND SHORT SLEEVES AND SHOULDER CAPES FOR EARLY FALL WEAR

SHORT jackets and short sleeves are quite the correct thing for early Fall wear, and the little shoulder cape is the very latest and prettiest addition to costumes for the cooler days.

These capes are made of the same material as the skirt, worn usually over a daintily made waist.

For the first cool days this suit of black and white check canvas cloth is just the thing; the skirt is made in panels of close pleats bordered with bias bands of the same material.

The coat is a rather short Eton, with flaring elbow sleeves over undersleeves of Valenciennes lace and chiffon.

On the coat, where the strappings cross, are ornaments of black and white cloth and silk.

The hat worn with this suit is in the new, large mushroom shape of white felt. It is bound with a thick black satin cord and trimmed with a big folded rosette of orange velvet and black bird of Paradise plumes.

Another hat is of tan felt, with mushroom brim. A large brown velvet rose holds in place two loops of tan ribbon edged with bands of mink, which spread on either side of the brim and cluster underneath it at the back in long, loose bows.

HER DEFENDER

FIRST met my sweetheart in a bakeshop. She was lifting a pan of cakes, and dropped them. The boss just started on a good all-round scolding when I interfered and told him it was not right for a girl to be obliged to lift such heavy pans. From that time on I held a warm spot in the little girl's heart, and now I am her husband, and my home is blessed with two little ones.

FOUND AND LOST

WHILE walking along the street
Upon a step I spied
A pair of dainty little feet,
For her shoe had come untied.

I offered her my assistance
And started to accost her;
She showed me no resistance;
Had her two years, then lost her.

WHILE SKATING

I WENT out skating one afternoon and turned my ankle. A handsome stranger came along and assisted me home. Now we are married. MRS. SADIE CROSBY.

HOW IT HAPPENED

I BECAME acquainted with my husband through correspondence, which ripened into friendship. Of course we became anxious to meet and did so, which resulted in our engagement, and our wedding soon followed. We have no reason to regret it.

HERO FOREVER

MET my affinity while he was a college man, coaching the football squad at a popular eastern seminary. In my search after a hero for a play I was staging he was brought forward by one of the boys. I accepted him for a stage partner and afterward for a life partner.

WITH A MORAL

I MET my sweetheart at a horse show. I was visiting a girl friend on whom he was then paying attention. I afterwards married him, much to her sorrow.

THE BAND PLAYED ON

I WENT on my Summer vacation in the country. Country people have weekly band concerts, and at one of these concerts I met my sweetheart. He went home with me that night, called and took me driving ever since. We became engaged later in the season.

TOOK TWO YEARS

IN Boston in October, 1903, I found lady's card in Pullman car accidentally dropped; address, Chicago. For fun I wrote a few lines, enclosing my card and mailed to her address; no reply. Following February I received a leap year letter from Chicago. I answered it; received no reply. July, 1904, received anonymous souvenir card, postmark Chicago. September, 1904, I went to Chicago on business trip, looked up this stranger's address and attended church she was member of, and sang in choir. Introduced. She helped me, unconsciously, in identifying myself when she asked: "Is your home in Chicago?" "No, my home is Boston," I replied, smiling a trifle. She seemed startled, looked confused and steadied herself by end of pew, slowly raised her head (and I guess my smiles assured her) as she said: "You surely are not ——" "The same," I said, "and you might have answered one of my notes." The result was I got an invitation to call and meet her folks and friends. I did, and September, 1905, we were married and I have blessed fate ever since.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

DOES NOT SEEM SINCERE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About two years ago I was introduced to a young man, who, upon first acquaintance, showed me marked attention, but at that time I did not care for him. He went away, and I did not see him again until about seven months ago, when he asked me not to go with anybody but him, later on proposing marriage, and I, finding I loved him, promised to do so. Now lately he has not been calling on me, but, as I happened to meet him, he told me that his parents were very strict, and that he was unable to go with any girl at present, and for me not to go with any young man for a while and everything would turn out all right. But at the same time he has been seen taking a walk with another girl, and when I spoke to him about it he says she waits for him, but that he never takes her out, and that he does not care for her. If you were me would you do as he asks me, as sometimes I think he is not sincere, although when talking to him he seems to think a great deal of me. BESSIE.

SOMEWAY I cannot feel that your friend is sincere. He makes such a foolish excuse for not seeing you. Very few parents are so strict as that. Do not consider yourself bound to him in any way. Go ahead and form other friendships if you care to.

How to Take Care of Silk Stockings

INSTEAD of wringing silk stockings out, simply squeeze them well, afterwards rinsing in two waters the same temperature, hanging out to dry without wringing.

In washing silk stockings they should first be soaked in borax water, afterward washed quickly in soap suds which is no more than blood warm.

If the water is hot, the result is that the silk becomes harsh and crinkley.

A little bluing should be added to the water if the silk stockings are white, but not if colored.

Knit silk should never be sprinkled.

Instead, wring out a towel from hot water, fold stocking up in it and leave for an hour.

In ironing them smooth out all the wrinkles on the ironing board and press quickly.

Turn inside out and press again.

White lace stockings should be cleansed in benzine.

Turn inside out and lay in a deep dish and pour the benzine over.

When the soil has been removed turn the stockings right side out, and with fresh supply of benzine wash again. Dry thoroughly and they are ready to wear.

Some women find that their black stockings and those in bronze fade.

Also if there is any chance for the color to fade it will be well to soak them in salt and water before they are washed.

A DURABLE DOOR MAT

A MOST durable door mat for hard, outside use may be made of coils of rope, that which has had some use being preferable to that which is perfectly new. Take a darning needle and strong cord, coil the rope around once, and sew on the under side; then make another coil, and do likewise until you have a large mat. Such a mat is not easily blown or kicked out of place.

"IT was out of the question," said Olga, quickly. "And I have perfect confidence in Hagar. Like so many of her gypsy blood she has a wonderful knowledge of healing remedies. And, after all, I had myself to think of. To have called in a doctor would naturally have provoked inquiries, would have meant that I should be dragged into it—recognized as the escaped prisoner. I could not risk that. I could only leave him in Hagar's care until he recovered sufficiently to tell her what friends to communicate with."

"Forgive me!" cried Rosamund quickly. "I had forgotten for the moment, in my anxiety about my father. And, indeed, I am very grateful to you. But—but since I have received no word from this gypsy woman, I fear—I fear——"

Her lip quivered; she could not finish the sentence.

"Don't look on the dark side, Rosamund," interposed Herries, quickly. "Remember that, after all, it is such a short time since; a man does not recover quickly from such injuries as your father must have received." He glanced at his watch. "The three of us will run over in the auto. We will call for you at your cottage," he added to Olga. "You must hope for the best, Rosamund."

"Yes, yes, I will look on the bright side," cried the girl. "And you think we shall find my father, Jack, don't you?"

"I do think so, dear; I know that Miss Wynne has spoken the truth," he said, as Olga walked back to her cottage.

"The news is so wonderful, I think it would have made me perfectly happy, Jack, perfectly happy—except for this other terrible fear. Oh, Jack, Jack! it has frightened me so, this thing that hangs over you!"

Sweet Confessions

"But you mustn't be frightened, little woman," he said, tenderly; "at last to-day we have found a clue that may bring the guilty man to justice and clear both that poor girl and myself of suspicion!" He paused; then, "Dear, I had no right to ask you to be my wife, with this menace hanging over me. I wronged you in asking——"

"No, no!" she cried.

"Ah, but I had no right to speak," John Herries said, again. "I did not mean to speak till the cloud had passed, but—I loved you, dear, so much, and that night when I found you in such sorrow I could not keep the words back. Once before I had nearly to'd you that I loved you——"

She looked at him with moist, shining eyes.

"Oh, I am glad you didn't keep the words back, Jack!—so very glad—more than ever glad now, because, dear, my love may be a help to you if trouble should come," she whispered softly. "Oh, I am glad you spoke, Jack!"

"Bless you, dear!" he whispered, looking into her face. "If the trouble should come, it will pass—be sure of that. Haggard will not betray us; he will not dare, with his own burden of guilt. The trouble will pass from us and from that poor, hunted girl who is giving you back your father. Already we can prove how the trinkets of—of my dead wife came to be in Olga Vail's room; there was no other evidence against her to connect her with the crime; there can be no real evidence."

"Sweetheart," Rosamund whispered softly, looking up into his face in the deepening dusk of on-coming night, "I want you to hear me say one thing. Whatever comes—whatever trouble—always believe that I shall be glad you told me you loved me, dear. You are never to reproach yourself with having told me, never, never! You brought me the greatest happiness of my life. Whatever comes, you are always to remember that!"

"My darling!" John Herries's arms were round her, as they stood in the deep shadows of the murmurous woodland, and he kissed her upturned face—her tender, beautiful mouth, the soft fragrant hair; his arms held her strained close to his breast.

Please God—the prayer was in his heart as their lips met—the shadow of that tragedy would never fall to the hurt of his beloved!

They walked back together to the house, where Rosamund broke in to overwhelm her aunt with the news.

She put on her hat quickly and rejoined Herries. They called for Olga at her cottage, and the three of them started on their trip.

Though she concealed the fact, Olga was full of nervous apprehensions as they alighted from the motor at the other end of the town. Her mind was vividly reconstructing her flight along these same roads, with handcuffed wrists hidden under her cloak, hunted and desperate.

No ordinary person was likely to recognize her as the woman whose portrait was posted up all over the country; her disguise was effective. But one lurking fear haunted her.

Terrible News

She had been seen in her present disguise, and her identity suspected, in the course of her interview that afternoon with Freda. Though it was, of course, unlikely that the man who had tried to follow her would be in the neighborhood, yet she could not shake off gloomy forebodings.

They made their way to the gypsy woman's cottage.

In the window the red light burned, throwing its vivid stain across the road; and the sight of it reminded Olga of old Hagar's words:

"The footsteps of the man for which that light burns are still far off—yet coming nearer, always nearer, as the tangled thread winds tight and draws him here."

How near were the footsteps now of which old Hagar had spoken so strangely?

Olga tapped at the door; Rosamund and Herries stood a little distance away, the girl in a fever of excitement.

Before the door was opened, a man came hurriedly through the side gate from Philip Haggard's grounds, facing Hagar's cottage, where a bicycle stood.

He led it out into the road, and was just mounting when he saw Rosamund.

"Miss Wynter!" he cried in surprise. He was Haggard's medical man; he knew the Wynters very well. "I have just come from Mr. Haggard's—perhaps you have heard?"

"Heard, Dr. Trent?" said Rosamund. "I don't understand you."

"I am afraid you must be prepared to hear terrible news," the doctor said slowly. "In view of the business partnership between your late father and Mr. Haggard, I betray no professional confidence in speaking; indeed, it would have been necessary to communicate the news to you without delay——"

Mr. Wynter Lost

"But what are you speaking of?" cried Rosamund, startled by the words.

"Some sudden shock seems to have turned Mr. Haggard's brain, and I am on my way now for a specialist, though I think nothing can be done for the poor fellow. In plain words, Miss Wynter, his reason has gone—I very much fear, hopelessly. I mustn't stop," and without waiting for an answer he rode hurriedly away.

Herries met Rosamund's quick glance. The news had startled both of them unmeasurably.

"What a terrible ending!" muttered Herries, wondering if Olga Vail's denunciation of his crime had in any way helped to induce this tragic culmination, that seemed like a retribution.

Olga had caught nothing of the doctor's words. The gypsy woman had opened the door.

"Hagar," Olga whispered.

A little cry of excitement broke from Hagar as she heard the familiar voice. She peered closer.

"Can it be you, dearie?" she cried, "come back at last! I've been thinking of you so much of late, wondering where you were why you did not come——"

"I could not come, Hagar; I dared not. I knew that the police would be keeping a watch hereabouts. But the injured man we brought here from the tower last night, Hagar—this is his daughter who has come with me, impatient for news—impatient to see him. He is recovering?"

"Yes, he is recovering, dearie," said Hagar in a troubled voice, "but——" she paused.

Rosamund heard the words. What did that ominous "but" mean?

"Tell me—don't keep me in suspense!" she cried.

There was bad news coming, she felt sure.

"He has gone," said Hagar helplessly. "He slipped out of his cottage whilst his mind was still too weak from his injuries to remember anything and has disappeared. I don't know where."

A Sure Cure for the Blues

IT is always worth while to see the bright side of things.

We mostly have a desire to grieve over spilt milk, and that we start the habit in early childhood is clear from the number of maxims the combined wisdom and comfort of the nursery has produced. "What can't be cured must be endured," however incontrovertible it may be, is somewhat Spartan in its application, and the admonition not to "make mountains out of molehills" is far less easy to practise than to preach.

Hardly cheerful, on the face of it, is the encouraging motto, "Never mind, it will be all the same a hundred years hence," but for all that it contains a germ of true philosophy. We should be halfway toward equanimity if we could only realize how trivial and how transitory are many of the things we worry over.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The last game between the New York Highlanders and Pilgrims in this city for the year will be played this afternoon, probably before a good mob. The teams meet but twice again this season, beginning October 6 in Boston. Then the bell rings.

By ringing in impromptu savate contests, which means fighting with the limbs, perhaps the Boston players believe they will attract the fight fans and the French population of this city, who understand the game better, but they won't get the ball followers on the trail until there's a better article of baseball mixed in during the afternoon. It begins to look to-day as though the Hayden-Ferris incident was a well-planned affair, to which the right fielder contributed a few teeth for the sake of having the club win back a little of the popularity it once enjoyed in this city. There hasn't been a more disgusting affair on a ball field in this city, outside the Polo Grounds, of course, for many years. For those who are yet uninformed be it known that Hayden called Ferris names and then punched his jaw. While sitting on the bench a few minutes later Ferris began to think he was a bit insulted, so he walked over and kicked Hayden in the face with his spikes, extracting a few teeth in the process. Then the game continued.

Prep Teams Get Down to Work Early SCHOOL FOOTBALL ON

School football will be on full tilt after to-day and before long the various school elevens will take some shape. Most of the schools have plenty of material with which to work, and active preparations for a good foundation will begin at once.

This year English High will be captained by Corcoran, who played guard last year. Howard Johnson will lead Nobles and Marsh will do likewise for Waltham.

Captain Carey of South Boston High expects a large squad for a tryout, and has been busily engaged the last month studying the new rules and the best method of applying them.

Fred Johnson, who played fullback for Brighton last year, will captain the team. Half of the line men and the whole back field will not return and the vacancies will have to be supplied by new material.

* * *

Already football is on in earnest in Malden, Melrose and Medford, many candidates from the various schools reporting yesterday and getting down to work.

At Medford twenty-five men appeared at Brooks Playstead yesterday afternoon and were put through light work, consisting of catching punts and simple formations, under the direction of Captain Hallet Saulsman and Coach E. J. Zimmer of Harvard. Eight men of last year's strong team are back in school, and Coach Zimmer declares himself as highly pleased with the material at hand. The first game will be played with Dorchester at Dorchester, a week from Saturday.

The Melrose candidates were thirty in number, and according to Captain John Stevens and Coach J. Thatcher Sears, the prospects of a fast team are bright. Four members of last year's team were out with the squad yesterday.

This will be the last opportunity to see the Giants play at the South End Grounds this afternoon in their game with the Tenneyites. The visiting aggregation has already won two games, and they feel confident that they will have little difficulty taking the third, and thus keeping a tight hold on second place, which they are trying to keep away from the Pirates.

Dummy Taylor will probably do the fireline work for the Giants to-day. He has always been a stiff proposition for the Bostons, and the chances are that he will be able to win to-day.

The Bostons were beaten by the New Yorks, with the great Christy Mathewson, who won the world's championship for the Giants last season, at their helm. He was a stumbling block for the locals, and whenever they looked dangerous he steadied himself, and kept them from scoring. Six hits, with a total of seven, was the sum of Boston's batting.

Young was rather effective against the New Yorkers, but he was given very miserable support. No less than five errors were made by the home team.

The Giants again demonstrated that they are the rowdiest ball players in the game. They tried to intimidate the umpire in every possible way. They kicked on balls and strikes when there was absolutely no need of it.

Roger Bresnahan was put out of the game for kicking at a decision of the umpire in the third inning, and was replaced by Bowerman.

SPARROW WINS RACE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Charles J. Swain's Sparrow, the winner of the Reliability trials on Monday, won the long distance race of 115.6 nautical miles to Poughkeepsie and return yesterday, in the second day of the carnival of the Motor Boat Club of America. She covered the course in six hours forty-five minutes fifty-five seconds.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Friends of the Chicago National League Club are planning a demonstration in the event the Chicago wins the championship of the world from the winning club of the American League. Mayor Dunne is to be asked to accept the chairmanship of a committee of leading business and professional men.

COLLINS MAY BRING SUIT AGAINST CLUB

Jimmy Collins finally had his conference with General Charles H. Taylor yesterday afternoon. Collins was informed that the final decision in his case was suspension for the rest of the season.

Later Captain Collins made no statement in reference to his plans other than that he had placed his contract in the hands of an attorney for advice. He said yesterday that he did not care to make any trouble, as the easiest way out of it was the best, but he did not propose to let any one keep him from earning a living out of baseball if he could help it. He would not say that he would bring suit against the club. He would leave that to the judgment of his attorney.

"I want my release," said Captain Collins. "The club does not want me and I am sure, under those circumstances, I want to get away."

SHEVLIN ASSISTS YALE.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 12.—It was stated by Wilson McClintock, who was coach of last year's freshman football team and room-mate of Tom Shevlin, captain of the varsity eleven, that Shevlin will come to Yale for the preliminary football season, which opens September 17, and will remain a week to help out the football coaches in developing the new rules and getting the players into a working knowledge of the rules.

YALE TRAINER IS DEAD

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 12.—Harry Ganley, who was connected with Yale athletic teams for ten years and trainer for the New Haven baseball nine the past year, died during the night. He was attacked with typhoid while with the New Haven team and died of a hemorrhage. He was thirty-five years old. Last month he received an offer to become trainer of the New York National League team next season.

Many Crimson Gridiron Stars Will Be Inelligible.
HARVARD HIT HARD BY RULES

Soldiers' Field came to life again to-day when Coach "Bill" Reid and Captain "Junie" Foster gathered the candidates for the 1906 Harvard football team together and gave them their first lesson in the new game of football.

The season to be inaugurated at Cambridge is looked forward to with more interest by Harvard men than any season for a long time past. It is recognized by the Harvard student body that the game of football this year will be a very different affair from that played last year. This will be particularly true of Harvard.

Last year Reid depended upon his famous tackle tandem, in which the burly Brill and the hard-fighting Squires were used to plunge into the line for short but sure gains. Under the new rules, which require that the centre, guards and tackles play on the line all the time unless they are brought back at least five yards from the scrimmage line, the Harvard tandem will be illegal. This means that a distinctly new Harvard offensive game must be developed. What it will be with Reid at the head of the strategic board is a question of great interest to Harvard men.

Harvard Hard Hit.

The immediate and most absorbing question with regard to Harvard football at the present time is that of the material from which the eleven is to be developed. By the new eligibility rules the Crimson eleven is to be deprived of three of her regular linesmen of last year who were the mainstay of the best rush line that Harvard has had since the days of Cutts. These men are Leary, end; Squires, tackle, and Kersburg, guard. All of these men were planning to be in the graduate department at Harvard during the coming year, and all would have been eligible for the Crimson team.

In addition to these men Harvard will lose two other members of her last year's line who will be in the University during the present term. These are Knowlton and Brill. The former played his fourth year on the Harvard eleven last season, while the latter has declared that he will not play football again on account of its interfering with his studies, and because he does not believe in the game. This will leave Reid with only Burr and Parker, guard and centre, from his old line.

Harvard will lose two men through the new eligibility rules who, though they did not land regular berths on the Crimson eleven last year, were regarded as comers for this season. They were Snyder, a sub end last year, and Cavanaugh, a strapping law school man, who played on the second team last season. The Crimson back field will also lose a star half back through the new rules in Fisher Nesmith, who, though injured last season, showed himself to be the strongest defensive half on the Crimson squad. Like Cavanaugh and Snyder, Nesmith will be in the law department this year.

Will Lose Six Men.

Every head coach of a big college eleven will spring a hard luck tale this year about the splendid material that he has lost through the new code of eligibility rules, but none of them will be as heavy a sufferer as the Crimson. Leary, Squires, Kersburg, Cavanaugh, Snyder and Nesmith—of these six men at least four would have been sure of regular places on the eleven and the other two would have been at least first subs.

Carr, fullback, will be lost through graduation, as will also Harrison, substitute fullback. Whitman, sub end; Montgomery, sub tackle, and Nichols, sub half, will all be lost in the same way. Hurley has played his four years.

The main assets that Reid will start the season with will be a star punter and two fast and experienced halfbacks. Burr, guard last year, is the punter, and Captain Foster and Wendell are the two halfbacks. Parker and Starr, from last season's aggregation, will furnish a strong centre and a reliable quarterback. This is Reid's veteran nucleus, which is certainly not one to inspire any over-confidence in the breasts of Harvard supporters.

Few Players in Sight.

The fact that makes this scarcity of veteran material such a serious affair is that there are very few men in sight from the second string of last year. MacDonald and Hall were both tried at ends last year. The former showed promise, and will probably be given a thorough trying out this year. Hall is aggressive and very fast, but exceedingly light.

For the tackle positions Roy Speare is about the only man in view. He played on the second team last season and has strength and speed, but was handicapped by an old injury. The task of satisfactorily filling the tackle positions looks to be the hardest that Reid has before him. Burr will hold down one guard position and Waldo Pierce, sub-guard last year, should be a likely man for another place. Parker, Barney and Cunniff offer good material for centres of the heavy beefy variety.

Back of the Line.

Back of the line there is not such a scarcity of good men. Dill Starr is going to have to hustle hard to hold his place as regular quarter this year. Starr's forte has always been his ability to handle the ball cleanly and drive his running back hard. He is not good runner with the ball, not being particularly fast on his feet.

It is a very great question as to whether the ability to run well with the ball in open play is not going to be an absolute requisite for a first-class quarter this year. That being the case, Mort Newhall, substitute quarter last season, and Kerans, who played quarter on the second team in 1904, will have a likely chance to land the position. The latter was prevented from playing last season owing to an operation for appendicitis during the vacation period. Reid admitted that this was a great disappointment to him, as he regarded Kerans as a comer. His work will be closely watched this year.

Captain Foster and Wendell are ideal halfbacks for an open game, both being fast and experienced. Outside of them very little is known of the material that will be available for halves. Hanley, Lockwood and Osborne stand out as candidates for fullback. Hanley has an ideal build for a star fullback, but in three years has never made good. Lockwood is a sprinter, but as a defensive back was woful. Osborne, like Kerans, was prevented from playing last year owing to an attack of sickness. He is inexperienced, but has every qualification for a good back. He is another man who will be closely watched.

Under the energetic Reid Harvard will undoubtedly have a good eleven, but with the material on hand it would be foolhardy to say that the prospect for a winning Crimson combination were bright.

LIFE GUARDS FOR FOOTBALL PLAYERS

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., Sept. 12.—On orders received from "Boney" Reiter, the coach, the Wesleyan football squad will report next week at the life-saving station at Ocean Grove, N. J., where its members will act as life guards for the next two weeks.

Reiter himself has been a lifeguard there for several years and has saved many lives. He says that he knows of no better method to harden the football men than having them at the life station. He will require them to take long pulls in the lifeboats each day and to swim and walk a great deal. They will live in a pavilion on the beach. Arthur K. Dearborn of this city, captain of last year's Wesleyan eleven, will aid Reiter in his work with the men at the Grove.

HIGHLANDERS FEAR NAPS IN RACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Clarke Griffith, the Highlanders' leader, said to-day, when asked as to his chances of winning the American League pennant this year: "Just remember that there are seven other clubs in the league. I am not counting on any sure things at this stage. We have got a hard schedule to finish out. We will soon go West. Cleveland will be about in its best form to receive us, and Joss has always been the hardest pitcher for us to hit.

"At present the team is in good shape to go the limit, but one can't tell how a nine is going to weather a hard finish."

MEMBERSHIP OF THE BAY STATE A. A. NOW APPROACHING THE 1,000 MARK

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The Bay State Automobile Association now has a membership of 678, which proves far more than can mere words the great success that has followed this organization since its inception less than two years ago. The promoters and organizers of the association builded better than they knew. The results have far surpassed the anticipations of those men who were the pioneers in the effort to give to Boston a motor club which would do something for the general welfare of the sport. The association has always been active in the world of motoring, and its officers have worked to a conscientious degree to achieve results. The securing of the clubhouse on Dartmouth street was certainly a move in the right direction, and since it has been opened the majority of the tourists to Boston and vicinity have enjoyed the privilege and hospitality of the same. The board of directors at its meeting yesterday transacted a great amount of routine business, and planned to materially increase the efficiency and influence of the organization in the very near future.

The Bay State, Providence, Springfield, Brockton and the majority of other motor clubs in the State will call club runs on September 22, the date of the holding of the field sports of the Worcester Automobile Club. The fact that the date falls on the same day as the holding of the Vanderbilt elimination will not materially reduce the interest at Worcester.

* * *

The distance of this year's Vanderbilt race will be 297.10 miles as against 283 miles of a year ago. The recent survey and measurement of the course showed 29.71 miles to the lap, which negotiated ten miles before the finish gives the total distance. The drawings for race position for the cars in the elimination will occur at Garden City on Saturday evening.

The practice work of the American cars starts early this morning and will continue until the day prior to the race. These American cars are now on the course: Locomobile, Apperson, Matheson, Pope-Toledo, Christie, Maxwell, Haynes and three Frayer-Millers. The Thomas trio will be on the course before the end of the week, as also will the B. L. M. car.

After Caillois, the favorites for the American team are Tracey (Locomobile), Lytle (Pope-Toledo) and Robertson (Apperson).

* * *

Manager Charles E. Fay of the local branch of the Ford Motor Car Company left Boston for Detroit this morning, where he goes to attend a conference of the Ford agents.

* * *

George Heath, winner of the first Vanderbilt cup race and second finisher in the race last year, arrived in New York yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. His duplicate Panhard racing cars of 120-horse power will arrive during the week on a slower steamer. Mr. Heath, who is an American by birth and an amateur driver of the highest rank, is one of the strong favorites for the cup race on October 6.

* * *

Immediately upon the close of the Vanderbilt race and his coming conference with the powers that be in the N. A. A. M., Mr. Charles J. Glidden will renew his trip around the world. He now proposes to drive from Boston to Mexico City, taking the highway as far as Chicago, the Rock Island railroad tracks to Texas, and the National lines of Mexico railway to Mexico City. The total mileage will be about 4,600, all but 1,100 of which he will drive on railroad tracks.

REFEREE STOPS THE FIGHT

Through Referee Maffit Flaherty not seeing Burke receive a short-arm blow in the plexus from Hugo Kelly at the Lincoln Club in Chelsea last evening the latter was awarded the decision in the final seconds of the fifth round. Flaherty had previously warned Burke that he could not drop to one knee for the count without being disqualified. He was standing in the centre of the ring, and the boxers had twisted their backs to him in the struggle when Kelly struck the blow that hundreds on that side of the ring saw, causing Burke to drop, but immediately Flaherty raised his hand and pointed to Kelly as the victor.

The house was in an uproar in the final stages of the contest. Many of the spectators left without knowing whether Kelly gained the decision by a foul committed by Burke or that the former had shown the "yellow."

Fast and Furious Fight.

From the tap of the gong till the time Kelly got the verdict the fighting was fast and furious. Burke jumped from his corner at the call of time and swinging his arms like a windmill landed right and left at will, Kelly attempting to block the blows and close in to clinch for protection. Burke staved him off with uppercuts, swings and body blows. After two minutes of fighting Burke caught Kelly on the jaw and the latter went down for a count of five.

In the second, too, it was all Burke, but in the following rounds Kelly had sized up his man and was gradually wearing him out for the finish when the climax came.

It was simply a case of Burke attempting to route his opponent quick, and in doing so he fought out his strength. Kelly, though he appeared to be the sufferer, was a bit dazed after the razzle-dazzle he had received in the two rounds, but physically he had not worked a particle; consequently, when his head cleared, he had all of his strength to go after Burke, who was a very weary individual the latter part of the fight.

Hugo Kelly was introduced as the middleweight champion of the world. In his corner were Johnny Mooney, S. Ferretti, J. Gregg and Honey Mellody. Looking after Sailor Burke were Dan McKettrick, Bob Clark and Joe Levins. The betting was 10 to 8 on Kelly, with very few takers at the odds. Both had weighed in at 6 o'clock at less than 158 pounds.

Two bouts were decided before the main one. In the first Jim Lloyd of England made his debut, and was given a draw with Denny Ryan of Cambridge.

Harp Seemed Popular.

The semi-final was between Billy Boyle of Ireland and Bob Smith of Lowell. The former was well tattooed with the Irish flag, and was received with vociferous applause. He had it all over Smith in the first round, knocking the latter down several times. In the second the honors were very much the other way. Smith jumped out of his corner with blood in his eye, and the way he handed it to his antagonist was surprising in contrast to the previous round. It took less than half of the three-minute limit for him to put the Irish representative to sleep.

FRANK GOTCH AFTER BEELL

DES MOINES, Iowa, Sept. 12.—Frank Gotch has issued a challenge to Frank Beell to meet him any time within six months at any place for any purse up to $1,000, and he agrees to deposit the sum of money Beell will designate with any reliable person. While he says he believes Beell should first defeat "Farmer" Burns, he is willing to take him on to stop this talk Beell has been making about not being able to get a match. Gotch declares Beell has never shown any money or made a deposit to meet him.

TWO SHOPPING SNAPSHOTS WERE IDENTIFIED YESTERDAY

Rewards Were Quickly Paid on Monday's and Tuesday's Photographs.

THE Camera Man's daily productions for the last two days have been quickly appreciated. Both Monday's and yesterday's snapshots of women shoppers were speedily identified, and the daily awards of $2 were promptly distributed.

The photograph in Monday's paper was claimed by Mrs. F. W. Ward of No. 41 Bailey street, Ashmont. The photo was taken near Jordan Marsh's Saturday morning, just before noon.

The little snapshot in yesterday's BOSTON AMERICAN was identified by Miss Louise Savage of No. 44 Beacon street, Somerville. Miss Savage saw the Camera Man when he snapped her in front of Shepard, Norwell's on Monday, and was just waiting for her likeness to appear. She knew the click of the camera shutter meant $2 for her, and she promptly appeared for her money.

One shopping photo is taken daily in the vicinity of stores patronized by readers of this newspaper. When YOUR photo appears, call and get your money.

CLARK BEGINS SENATE FIGHT

William W. Clark of Ward 19, Democratic candidate for Senator from the Ninth District, opened his campaign last night at the rooms of the John F. Fitzgerald Club on Columbus avenue. Mr. Clark addressed the members of the club on the issues of the campaign and stated that if he were elected he would devote his entire efforts to the bills and measures that favored the workingmen. He vigorously advocated the passing of the eight-hour bill, the picketing bill and the overtime bill.

Mr. Clark strongly urged the adoption of the municipal ownership movement and stated that in his opinion it was the only available measure that would insure the political salvation of the workingmen. In his concluding remarks the speaker scored the policy and official acts of his opponent, Mr. Butler, and branded him as being in the employ and within the immediate reach of the Boston Elevated Company. He referred to the bill that he introduced in the Legislature while a member of the House, calling for the equipment of electric cars with jacks to be used in case of accidents, and stated that the bill was vigorously opposed by Mr. Butler in the interests of the railroad company. Mr. Clark's remarks were well received by the members of the club, and he was assured of its unqualified support in his campaign.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

We Are Fighting The Big Piano Trust

And We Are Winning the Fight.

The name "Piano Trust" sounds big, looks powerful and frightens a good many small piano dealers. They wouldn't dare to cut the price on a "Piano Trust" instrument. We have been cutting their prices for months—cutting—slashing—and actually slaughtering their prices, and have been whipping the Big Piano Trust representatives in every N. E. State. We confess that we are making but little money doing it, but we are still in the ring and selling almost any make of high grade Pianos, new or second hand, at prices that make the Big Piano Trust sick.

Buy Pianos With Brains

For a small amount of money and the use of a fair amount of brains, you can get the best makes of pianos here at a price from $100 to $200 less than you can at any large piano dealers' warerooms.

This is a fact—Don't take anyone's word for it.—Investigate for yourself—use your brains and save your money.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 12, 1906

THE OPENING OF THE SCHOOLS

In the Child, the Parents Behold Real, UNSELFISH IMMORTALITY

The real work of civilization begins in the public schools, which opened in Boston this morning.

Our generation of grown men and women will be here but for a moment more.

We work at our more or less trivial plans, realizing sadly that our possibilities are limited, that we shall soon be gone and our work ended.

But in the school child, in the splendid public schools of the land, there are real hope and real enthusiasm.

One city of our country alone—New York—has more than half a million children getting FREE EDUCATION, REPUBLICAN EDUCATION, in the public schools.

There, free from the prejudices of olden days, with clean mental sheets upon which the future is to be written, the children gather at work, INSPIRED BY THE GENUINE DEMOCRACY OF THE AMERICAN SCHOOLS.

It is a beautiful fact that in the child the man and the woman find real unselfish immortality upon this earth.

We have our belief and our hope in a happy future for our OWN souls. But our plans for our own happiness after death are selfish.

In our children we see the best that is within us. We see living before us immortality of our own selves, of the affection of the husband for the wife, OF THE UNSELFISH DEVOTION OF BOTH OF THEM TO THE FUTURE GENERATION.

Each public school class is a panorama of the noblest, highest sentiment, FAMILY AFFECTION.

Each little child represents the good affection of a husband and a wife devoting their lives to each other and to their children. There is nothing as beautiful in this world as those great public school seas of childish faces. Millions of millions of the little growing minds spread from one ocean to the other, and it is the chief glory of this nation that it has recognized among human rights THE RIGHT OF EVERY CHILD TO KNOWLEDGE.

We urge again upon the parents the most sincere and earnest cooperation with the teachers in the work that is to be done.

Teach the child to RESPECT the teacher. Instill in him GRATITUDE FOR THE UNSELFISH, PATIENT WORK THAT THE TEACHER DOES.

Make the child feel that the public school teacher is HIS FRIEND AND HIS FATHER'S AND MOTHER'S FRIEND.

Explain to the children how great a progress in civilization is represented by the schools.

Make the little boy and the little girl understand that their whole hope of success in life lies in utilizing the chance that school hours give them. MAKE THEM REALIZE THAT THEY WILL OWE MUCH OF THEIR FUTURE TO THE GOOD WORK THAT THE TEACHER DOES UNSELFISHLY FOR THEM NOW.

Teach them that it is a DISGRACE for them to make the teacher's work difficult, that it is an HONOR for a boy or girl to help the teacher in his work by obedience, and attention, AND RESPECT.

The parents and the teacher ARE PARTNERS IN A SACRED WORK.

The father and the mother in their affection add to the world the soul and the body of the child. That is their great contribution to the race to which they belong.

The teacher then does his work, gives direction to the mind that is growing, and, WITH THE PARENTS' CO-OPERATION, he brings the newest generation of human beings upon this earth, as near as may be, to the perfection which we are destined ultimately to attain.

Children should honor their parents. AND PARENTS SHOULD HONOR THEIR CHILDREN. They should remember that the little child born to-day CONTAINS THE WISDOM OF THE ANCIENTS, as Bacon has said.

He is the OLDEST of our race, for he is the last here in its development. The knowledge of all the past belongs to him. His possibilities are great. Those that have created him, doing wonderful and mysterious creative work, are entitled to be proud of their creation.

Parents should feel that there is nothing so important as the wise guiding of their children in the school years. They should realize that there is nothing in our whole state more vital THAN THE GENEROUS, EARNEST SUPPORT OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM, WHICH IS OUR GREATEST NATIONAL HONOR.

As for the teachers, we only express the sentiment of all the people of America in laying before them a tribute of deepest gratitude.

Confiding to the patient, affectionate care of our public school teachers the welfare of the American child, we cannot do better than translate, adapt and echo the address made by a great Frenchman to the public school teachers of France:

"You hold in your hand the intelligence and the souls of the children! You are responsible to the Fatherland. The children confided to your care must not merely learn to write and to read a letter, to read a sign at the corner of the street, to add and to multiply. They are Americans, and they must learn to know America, her geography and her history, her body and her soul. They are citizens and they must know the meaning of the word 'a free democracy.' They must know what rights are bestowed upon them and what duties are imposed upon them by the sovereignty of the nation.

"They will be men, and they must have an idea OF MAN. They must know the root of all our sufferings, which is egotism, selfishness, in its multiplied forms. They must know the principle of our national greatness—pride combined with gentleness.

"These children must understand broadly the achievements of the human race, conquering little by little the brutalities of nature and the brutalities of instinct. They must understand and distinguish the principal elements in that extraordinary structure which we call civilization.

"They must be taught the grandeur of thought, respect for the soul by awakening in them the sentiment of the INFINITE, which is our joy, and also our force. It is by that sense of the infinite and of infinite power that we shall triumph over evil, obscurity and death."

With feelings of solemn duty, the teachers of the nation undertake their great task.

With feelings of confidence and of the deepest gratitude the parents of the nation send their children to the public schools that all may learn to think alike, hope and work to the same end—the establishment of a genuine American democracy, genuine equality, genuine love of our fellowmen.

The Original Labor Union Caused the Nobility to Complain of Being Ruled by the Merchants

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

WHEN we think this world is a wicked and selfish place, we need to look to its condition something like five hundred years ago.

The civilized world (or what passed for it) at that period considered "wrecking" a legitimate occupation. Pirate ships went forth, unhindered by law and with the boldly avowed and publicly understood intention of wrecking merchant ships, depriving them of their cargoes and making their owners slaves and vassals.

The unwritten law made the conquered the slave of the conqueror always in those days.

In spite of such a condition, merchant ships plied the seas and carried their cargoes over the Baltic and the Mediterranean seas, brought the people of the Northlands in touch with those of the Southlands and traded with all known ports of the world.

It was the German nation that first made an effort to circumvent the established methods of wreckers and pirates.

This effort took the form of an organized union of German cities. The German cities, and afterward many others, organized in what became known in later times as "The Hanseatic Federation."

Hanseatic League

THE word Hansa is found in one translation of the Bible, as signifying a society or union of men.

Aldermen were selected from important cities, and each city had a key to a common treasury.

Each city so represented was made responsible if a trader suffered malignant shipwreck or was robbed of his goods within its domain. If such things occurred, these cities were bound to help the sufferer recover his goods and his safety.

It can be imagined how this very old union (probably the oldest on record) found difficulty in having its laws carried out, when it is known that the church at that era looked on the spoils of wreckage as its legitimate dues.

Many churches and monasteries were founded on this spoil. All the booty cast ashore by the waves was regarded as the "gift of Providence," and the dwellers on the Baltic shores, it is said, in their prayers daily asked God to give them a "good harvest of flotsam and jetsam."

Nevertheless, the German cities kept at their organized efforts, and grew in power and wisdom with the years.

Each defaulting city had to pay a fine of ten thousand dollars (in our money), and this went to strengthen the union, and for any recurrence of such defalcation expulsion from the community was added.

Movement Grows

THIS punishment was called "unhansing." The stain of this punishment was only wiped out by pilgrimages to distant shrines, added to heavy money tributes.

And so the honor of the union and a sense of its serious purpose was maintained.

And this was the very beginning of the transformation of pirates and robbers into honorable toilers and industrious citizens.

It was the beginning of co-operation—of labor unions.

A North German chronicler of the thirteenth century says: "The organization did not please the princes, knights and robbers; especially did it displease those who forever put forth their hands for booty. They said it was shameful that merchants should rule over high-born and noble men."

Just so we hear people talk now when any organized effort is being made to circumvent the high-born robbers who "put forth their hands for booty."

But just as the Hansa federation grew in strength and power, until it changed the whole system of human existence, so will all organized efforts of the present day grow, and all co-operative movements until our own world of the twentieth century changes into something higher and greater than exists to-day.

As the old sea pirates and robbers were put to rout, so will our pirates of finance and our trust robbers be made to stand aside through the swelling power of the new Hansa League.

CHIRE the cook by 'phone from your husband's office. Then stay away from home until she's gone. This method is a great preservative of beauty.

To remove wrinkles from the face and to acquire a pleasant expression induce an uncle to die and leave you $100,000.

In chasing a burglar out of the house it is best to keep in front of him, as otherwise he is likely to trip over obstacles with which you are familiar. Do not make the mistake of going through a second story window, as you are likely to break your leg, and besides the burglar may not follow you. Duck out of a ground floor or window and run the burglar till you come to a cop. You're safe then.
